The Water of Life Rita Knipe, 1989-08-01 Mythology flows like a subterranean stream throughout Hawai i Rita Knipe has selected a number of characteristic myths and mythological figures from the rich pantheon of Hawaiian deities As she retells their stories illustrated by Hawaii artist Dietrich Varez the transposition of such primal drama to the pages of this book becomes poetic theater The dramatic plots are myths and legends chosen from the oral traditions of unique island people but the underlying themes and symbols are archetypal and eternal Drawing parallels between Hawaiian mythology universal patterns and individual behavior the author illustrates certain basic Jungian concepts and explains how we express them in the drama of our own lives Cultures in Movement Martine Raibaud, Ionut Untea, Micéala Symington, 2015-02-05 The contributors to this volume encourage a re thinking of the very notion of culture by examining the experiences situations and the representations of those who chose or were forced to change cultures from the nineteenth century to the present day Beyond a simple study of migration forced or otherwise this collective work also re examines the model of integration As recent entrants into new social settings may be perceived as affecting the previously accepted social equilibrium mechanisms encouraging or inhibiting population flows are sometimes put in place From this perspective integration may become less a matter of internal choice than an external obligation imposed by the dominant political power in which case integration may only be a euphemism for cultural uniformity The strategies of cultural survival developed as a reaction to such a rising tide of cultural uniformity can be seen as necessary points of departure for an ever growing shared multiculturalism A long term voluntary commitment to make cultural boundaries more flexible and allow a more engaged individual participation in the process of defining the self and finding its place within a culture in movement may represent a key element for cultural cohesion in a globalized world an experimental conversation with the highest and lowest facets of humanity Once a man who sometimes wanted to kill himself loved a woman who sometimes wanted to live In Bob Hicok s Water Look Away we witness a brilliant poet enter a dark space and attempt to write himself out again Told in experimental forms from a range of perspectives a wife who commits suicide a husband left behind this raw collection reads like a novella and wrestles with loss as it complicates the grief process Working backwards from acceptance to explore depression and anger heartbreak and remorse often with great tenderness Water Look Away offers pages of insight that will make you reach for a pen Here poetry embalms a marriage an experimental affair a series of miscarriages a red bed painted on a wall When the retelling of their first meeting morphs from recounting to dreampage Hicok asks how long can we trust memory when those we love are no longer there to remember with us These are not passive poems period placement unconventional spellings and neologisms invite an active reader who is prepared to question meaning and intention A present collection written in the past tense these lines make you want to hold your loved ones closer and prove that while this collection is no fairytale it is still a love story of husband and wife of poetry and language Within every poem is an undeniable love for words and a vulnerable appeal to individuals who share this affinity for language I m always reading Turning the pages of your face Dog earing the way you smiled The Happiest
