Interpreting the Environment at Museums and Historic Sites Debra A. Reid, David D. Vail, 2019-09-19 Interpreting the Environment at Museums and Historic Sites is for anyone who wants to better understand the environment that surrounds us and sustains us who wants to become a better steward of that environment and who wants to share lessons learned with others The process starts by focusing attention on the environment the physical space that constitutes the largest three dimensional object in museum collections It involves conceptualizing spaces and places of human influence spaces that contain layer upon layer documenting human struggles to survive and thrive This evidence exists in natural environments as well as city centers The process continues by adopting an environment centric view of the spaces destined to be interpreted This mind set forms the basis for devising research plans that document how humans have changed destroyed conserved and sustained spaces over time and the ways that the environment reacts Interpretation built on this evidence then becomes the basis for minds on engagement with the places that humans inhabit and the spaces that they have changed and continue to manipulate Interpreting the Environment at Museums and Historic Sites provides a tool kit designed to help you research environmental history document evidence of human influence on land and the environment over time and tailor that knowledge to new public engagement It proposes a multi disciplinary approach that requires expertise in the humanities as well as the sciences and social sciences to best understand space and place over time It incorporates case studies of the theory and method of environmental history to explore how human goals take lasting shape in the environment creating working environments getting water generating and harnessing power growing food traveling and trading building things and preserving natural landscapes Features include the Interpreting the Environment Tool Kit to help you launch the good work of interpreting the environment Raw Materials the evidence landscape ecosystems artifacts and the built environmentPreparation methods thinking like a naturalist scientist thinking like a historian combining approachesPlanning envisioning the goal proactive message stewardship sustainabilityPartnerships sharing work strength in numbers allying across disciplinary divides united in efforts to inform the public about their individual and collective effects on the landscape and the environmentPotential educating the public about people and places is part of a world wide goal with the cumulative effect of saving the planet one story at a time A Timeline and Bibliographic essay round out the book s resources

The Environment and World History Edmund Burke III,Kenneth Pomeranz,2009-04-08 Since around 1500 C E humans have shaped the global environment in ways that were previously unimaginable Bringing together leading environmental historians and world historians this book offers an overview of global environmental history throughout this remarkable 500 year period In eleven essays the contributors examine the connections between environmental change and other major topics of early modern and modern world history population growth commercialization imperialism industrialization the fossil fuel revolution and more Rather than attributing environmental change largely to European science technology and capitalism the essays illuminate a series of culturally distinctive yet often parallel developments arising in many parts of the world leading to intensified exploitation of land and water The wide range of regional studies including some in Russia China the Middle East India Southeast Asia Latin America Southern Africa and Western Europe together with the book s broader thematic essays makes The Environment and World History ideal for courses that seek to incorporate the environment and environmental change more fully into a truly integrative understanding of world history CONTRIBUTORS Michael Adas William Beinart Edmund Burke III Mark Cioc Kenneth Pomeranz Mahesh Rangarajan John F Richards Lise Sedrez Douglas R Weiner
