David Smith, Drawing + Sculpting Steven A. Nash, Candida N. Smith, David Smith, 2005 David Smith is arguably the most important American sculptor of the twentieth century From his early development out of Surrealist and Cubist influences to the towering structures he made late in life Smith created a new language in iron and steel that embraced both symbolic figuration and pure abstraction Forty years after his death in 1965 the body of work he created still astonishes in its variety technical mastery and creative energy So powerful is Smith's legacy as a sculptor however that other highly important aspects of his art remain relatively neglected Such is the case with the thousands of drawings Smith produced throughout his artistic life David Smith Drawing Sculpting breaks new ground by focusing on his drawings and investigating specifically the important interactive role they played with his sculptures It illustrates many works drawn from the extensive holdings of the artist's estate that have never been exhibited previously and it contains the most thorough compendium published to date of David Smith's writings and statements on drawing Smith himself stressed repeatedly the connection in his work between drawing and sculpture noting that all of his art flowed from one continuous evolving stream with no separate provision for two dimensional versus three dimensional expression Drawings tended to link to sculptures not in linear developmental sequences or one to one relationships but more often as clusters or constellations of graphic themes and notations exploring ideas forms and motifs that also circulated through his sculptures David Smith Drawing Sculpting illuminates this fundamental principle in his art
