Zionism and Revolution in European-Jewish Literature Laurel Plapp, 2007-12-12 Zionism and Revolution in European Jewish Literature examines twentieth century Jewish writing that challenges imperialist ventures and calls for solidarity with the colonized most notably the Arabs of Palestine and Africans in the Americas Since Edward Said defined orientalism in 1978 as a Western image of the Islamic world that has justified domination critics have considered the Jewish people to be complicit with orientalism because of the Zionist movement However the Jews of Europe have themselves been caught between East and West both marginalized as the Orientalism of Europe and connected to the Middle East through their own political and cultural ties. As a result, European Jewish writers have had to negotiate the problematic confluence of antisemitic and orientalist discourse. Laurel Plapp traces this trend in utopian visions of Jewish-Muslim relations that criticized the early Zionist movement in post-Holocaust depictions of coalition between Jews and African slaves in the Caribbean revolutions and finally in explorations of diasporic transnational Jewish identity after the founding of Israel. Above all, Plapp proposes that Jewish studies and postcolonial studies have much in common by identifying ways in which Jewish writers have allied themselves with colonized and exilic peoples throughout the world.

The Text is Myself Miriam Fuchs, 2004. German Jewish novelist Grete Weil fled to Holland but her husband was arrested there and murdered by the Nazis. Chilean novelist Isabel Allende fled her country after her uncle Salvador Allende was assassinated and she later lost her daughter to disease.

Textual Responses to German Unification Carol Anne Costabile-Heming, Rachel J. Halverson, Kristie A. Foell, 2013-07-05. The unification of the two German states changed the geo-political, economic, social, and cultural borders of Germany and Europe. This volume in three parts researches how East German and West German authors and directors reacted to these radical changes. The basis of this research are fictional, autobiographical, journalistic, and cinematic texts. The authors and directors presented in this volume not only comment on the changes which they themselves experienced but also voice their changing attitudes to their own past within the divided Germany.

Postcommunism and the Body Politic Ellen E. Berry, 1995-07. The epidemic of mass rape in the former Yugoslavia has illustrated once again and in particularly brutal fashion the inextricable relationship between national politics, sexual politics, and body politics. The nexus of these three forces is highly charged in any culture at any time in history but especially so among cultures in which rapid even cataclysmic changes in material realities and national self-conceptions are eroding or overwhelming previously secure boundaries. The postcommunist moment in the so-called Second World Central and Eastern Europe and the former Soviet Union has dramatically exposed the opportunities and dangers that arise when the political, cultural, and economic foundations of a society are de- and then re-structured.

Gender roles and relations, expressions of sexuality, or attempts to recontain them, representations of the body, especially the female body, and the larger cultural meanings it assumes are particularly marked sites to witness the performance of complex national dramas of crisis and change. This groundbreaking volume turns its attention to the Second World specifically to such subjects as the birth of the sex media and porn industry in Russia, Russian women and alcoholism, cinema in post-communist Hungary, patriotism and gender in Poland, sexual dissidence in Eastern Europe, and women in the former Yugoslavia.
