Making Decisions That Matter How People Face Important Life Choices:

Making Decisions That Matter Kathleen M. Galotti, 2005-08-22 Researchers studying decision making have traditionally studied the phenomenon in the laboratory with hypothetical decisions that may or may not involve the decision maker's values, passions, or areas of expertise. The assumption is that the findings of these well-controlled laboratory studies will shed light on the important decisions people make in their everyday lives. This book examines that assumption. The volume begins by covering four basic phases of decision making: setting or clarifying goals, gathering information, structuring the decision, and making a final choice. Comprehensive reviews of existing literature on each of these topics is provided. Next, the author examines differences in decision making as a function of several factors not typically discussed in the literature: the type of decision being made (e.g., legal, medical, moral) and the existence of individual differences in the decision maker (developmental differences, individual differences in style or temperament, differences as a function of expertise). The author then examines the topic of group decision making, contrasting it with individual decision making. The volume concludes with some observations and suggestions for improving people's everyday decision making. This book is intended for use as a core textbook or supplement for courses in psychology, education, or allied disciplines. It will also be an invaluable resource for people who work with people making decisions in various applied settings, such as schools, universities, and health care centers.

Making Decisions That Matter Kathleen M. Galotti, 2005-07-11 The goal of this book is to describe ongoing research that examines real people making real decisions and compares it with theoretical predictions to provide readers with food for thought when it comes to their own decision making. To point out a quest.

Advances in Entrepreneurial Finance Rassoul Yazdipour, 2010-12-17 Advances in Entrepreneurial Finance brings together contributions from researchers from the fields of entrepreneurship, behavioral finance, psychology, and neuroscience to shed new light on the dynamics of decision making and risk taking by entrepreneurs and venture capitalists (VCs). Every new venture requires access to capital at competitive interest rates, and much has been written on general entrepreneurship by management scholars and financial contracting by financial economists using traditional finance theory with all its highly restrictive assumptions regarding decision makers' cognitive capabilities and behavior. But recent developments in behavioral finance can now be applied to understand how entrepreneurs and VCs perceive risk and uncertainty and how they decide and act accordingly Showcasing the latest research this volume demonstrates that findings from the behavioral and neuroscience arenas can and do explain decision making by entrepreneurs and venture investors in the real world Consequently such findings have practical implications not only for entrepreneurs venture capitalists and their advisors but also all government agencies and NGOs that want to support product and technological innovation capital formation job creation and economic development
