Savanna Ecology And Management Australian Perspectives And Intercontinental Comparisons:

Savanna Ecology and Management Patricia A. Werner,1990 Savanna Ecology and Management P. A.

Werner,2009-07-15 This volume is the fifth in a series of publications produced over the last five years on the ecology of tropical savannas The volumes arise from work undertaken by the Responses of Savannas to Stress and Disturbance RSSD Program under the auspices of the International Union of Biological Sciences IUBS Decade of the Tropics Programme co sponsored by the UNESCO Man and the Biosphere MAB Program Savannas cover just under one third of the world s land surface and contain a large and rapidly growing proportion of the world s population as well as the majority of its rangelands and livestock Most savannas are experiencing increasing pressures from demographic and economic changes that have increased dramatically over the past few decades In addition to the changing patterns in demography and economics and the forecasts of global warming further alert us to the most important challenge to conserve and manage wisely the savanna ecosystems of the world It is this conservation that forms the basis of the work of the RSSD Program This fifth publication is comprised of research papers presented at the RSSD s international symposium held in Darwin Australia in 1988 The papers address the Australian perspective and intercontinental comparisons and come from an international expert authorship

World Savannas Jayalaxshm Mistry,Andrea Beradi,2014-09-15 An interdisciplinary text on the world s savannas covering the geography ecology economics and politics of savanna regions Savannas are a distinct vegetation type covering a third of the world s land surface area and supporting a fifth of the world s population There has been a wide range of literature on the subject but the majority of work has focused on the ecology or development of savanna areas ignoring the wider interdisciplinary issues affecting contemporary savannas World Savannas aims to buck this trend providing students with an up to date and comprehensive introduction to the global importance of savannas Tropical Forage Plants W.D.

Pitman,Antonio Sotomayor-Rios,2000-11-28 Tropical Forage Plants Development and Use covers the research and resulting pasture development in the tropics and subtropics which has undergone dramatic changes in the past few decades Providing a broad global perspective it serves as a comprehensive resource covering a wide range of subjects pertaining to forage and animal production in th Environmental Management in Practice: Vol 3 Paul Compton,Dimitri Devuyt,Luc Hens,Bhaskar

Nath,2013-01-11 Volume 3 Managing the Ecosystem focuses on those ecosystems in which human intervention has been or continues to be predominant specifically within cities and rural areas The Nature of Northern Australia John

Woinarski,Brendan Mackey,Henry Nix,Barry Traill,2007-07-01 Northern Australia stands out as one of the largest natural areas remaining on Earth alongside such global treasures as the Amazon rainforests the boreal conifer forests of Alaska and Canada and the polar wilderness of Antarctica Nature remains in abundance in the North Its intact tropical savannas rainforests and free flowing rivers provide a basis for much of the economic activity and the quality of life for residents of the area THE NATURE OF NORTHERN AUSTRALIA details the latest science on the Northern environment With increasing debate over the future of Australia's often forgotten North this is a timely examination of its environmental significance the ecological processes that make it function and the economies that are compatible with maintaining healthy communities and people and healthy country into the future Invasion Biology and Ecological Theory Herbert H. T. Prins, Iain J.

Gordon, 2014-01-23 Many conservationists argue that invasive species form one of the most important threats to ecosystems the world over often spreading quickly through their new environments and jeopardising the conservation of native species As such it is important that reliable predictions can be made regarding the effects of new species on particular habitats This book provides a critical appraisal of ecosystem theory using case studies of biological invasions in Australasia Each chapter is built around a set of eleven central hypotheses from community ecology which were mainly developed in North American or European contexts The authors examine the hypotheses in the light of evidence from their particular species testing their power in explaining the success or failure of invasion and accepting or rejecting each hypothesis as appropriate The conclusions have far reaching consequences for the utility of community ecology suggesting a rejection of its predictive powers and a positive reappraisal of natural history Human Adaptability Emilio F. Moran, 2022-05-09 Designed to help students understand the multiple levels at which human populations respond to their surroundings this essential text offers the most complete discussion of environmental physiological behavioral and cultural adaptive strategies available Among the unique features that make Human Adaptability outstanding as both a textbook for students and a reference book for professionals are a complete discussion of the development of ecological anthropology and relevant research methods the use of an ecosystem approach with emphasis on arctic high altitude arid land grassland tropical rain forest and urban environments an extensive and updated bibliography on ecological anthropology and a comprehensive glossary of technical terms There is enhanced emphasis throughout on the role of gender in human adaptability research and on global environmental change as it affects particular ecosystems Students are guided to websites that provide access to relevant material complement the text's coverage of biomes and suggest ways to become active in environmental issues The fourth edition includes updated material on climate change and environmental policy This book is essential reading for students undertaking courses in environmental anthropology and human ecology Environmental Management for Sustainable regions to the tropics Responses of geo ecosystems and human environmental systems in the face of past present and future environmental change Approaches methodologies and techniques used for reconstructing dating monitoring modelling projecting and predicting change Social economic and political dimensions of environmental issues environmental conservation and management and environmental policy Over 4 000 entries explore the following key themes and more Conservation Demographic change Environmental management Environmental policy Environmental security Food security Glaciation Green Revolution Human impact on environment Industrialization Landuse change Military impacts on environment Mining and mining impacts Nuclear energy Pollution Renewable resources Solar energy Sustainability Tourism Trade Water resources Water security Wildlife conservation The comprehensive coverage of terminology includes layers of entries ranging from one line definitions to short essays making this an invaluable companion for any student of physical geography environmental geography or environmental sciences

Savannas and Dry Forests Andrea Berardi, 2017-05-15 Parched landscapes biodiversity loss encroaching deserts and deforestation are some of the environmental crises taking place in tropical savannas and dry forests throughout the world To date much research into these regions has treated humans as outside or as an impact only However over and over again examples show that in fact humans are not external factors but integral components of these systems Humans are key determinants of savannas and dry forests affecting patterns and processes as well as impacts on natural resources Unless we understand the human environment relationship in these regions we will never truly identify the causes or be able to provide solutions This book therefore focuses on the roles of the past present and future human perceptions and actions on savannas and dry forests It examines how the views of local farmers NGO workers government officials and international scientists differ on the links between the social and ecological components of savannas It deals with these multiple perspectives by using systems diagramming and conceptual modelling to provide a clearer and more explicit understanding and to promote better communication between the various actors concerned

Australian National Bibliography: 1992 National Library of Australia, 1988 Biodiversity and Ecosystem Function Ernst-Detlef Schulze, Harold A. Mooney, 2012-12-06 The biota of the earth is being altered at an unprecedented rate We are witnessing wholesale exchanges of organisms among geographic areas that were once totally biologically isolated We are seeing massive changes in landscape use that are creating even more abundant successional patches reductions in population sizes and in the worst cases losses of species There are many reasons for concern about these trends One is that we unfortunately do not know in detail the consequences of these massive alterations in terms of how the biosphere as a whole operates or even for that matter the functioning of localized ecosystems We do know that the biosphere interacts strongly with the atmospheric composition contributing to potential climate change We also know that changes in vegetative cover greatly influence the hydrology and biochemistry of a site or region Our knowledge is weak in important details however How are the many services that ecosystems provide to humanity altered by modifications of ecosystem composition

Stated in another way what is the role of individual species in ecosystem function We are observing the selective as well as wholesale alteration in the composition of ecosystems Do these alterations matter in respect to how ecosystems operate and provide services This book represents the initial probing of this central question It will be followed by other volumes in this series examining in depth the functional role of biodiversity in various ecosystems of the world Savanna Woody Plants and Large Herbivores Peter Frank Scogings, Mahesh Sankaran, 2019-09-30 Insights on current research and recent developments in understanding global savanna systems Increasingly recognized as synonymous with tropical grassy biomes savannas are found in tropical and sub tropical climates as well as warm temperate regions of North America Savanna Woody Plants and Large Herbivores examines the interactions between woody plants and browsing mammals in global savannas focusing primarily on the C4 grassy ecosystems with woody components that constitute the majority of global savannas and discusses contemporary savanna management models and applications This much needed addition to current research examines topics including the varying behavior of browsing mammals the response to browsing by woody species and the factors that inhibit forage intake Contributions from an international team of active researchers and experts compare and contrast different savanna ecosystems offering a global perspective on savanna functioning the roles of soil and climate in resource availability and organism interaction and the possible impacts of climate change across global savannas Fills a gap in literature on savanna management issues including biodiversity conservation and animal production Applies concepts developed in other biomes to future savanna research Complements contemporary books on savanna or large herbivore ecology Focuses on the woody component of savanna ecosystems and large herbivore interactions in savannas Compares tree mammal systems of savannas and other ecosystems of temperate and boreal regions Provides numerous case studies of plant mammal interactions from various savanna ecosystems Savanna Woody Plants and Large Herbivores is a valuable addition to those in fields such as ecology wildlife and conservation biology natural resource management and environmental science Biodiversity and Savanna Ecosystem Processes Otto T. Solbrig, Ernesto Medina, Juan F. Silva, 2013-03-07 Savannas are the most widespread ecosystem in the tropics and as such are subjected to great human pressure that may result in massive soil degradation The book addresses the role of species in the function of savanna ecosystems It is shown that savannas are enormously diverse and that four factors determine the function of savanna ecosystems Plant Available Moisture Plant Available Nutrients Fire Herbivores Forests and Grasslands John P. Rafferty Associate Editor, Earth Sciences, 2011-01-15 Presents an introduction to the forests and grasslands of the world describing their different forms evolution and modern formation physical features and composition and their impact on climate Human Adaptability, Student Economy Edition Emilio Moran, 2018-10-03 This book focuses on mechanisms of human adaptability It integrates findings from ecology physiology social anthropology and geography around a set of problems or constraints posed by human habitats Tropical Ecosystems and Ecological Concepts Patrick L. Osborne, 2012-02-09 Introductory textbook using the entire range of tropical ecosystems terrestrial freshwater and marine to illustrate and explain major ecological concepts
