Leena Mary, 2018-08-02 This updated book expands upon prosody for recognition applications of speech processing It includes importance of prosody for speech processing applications builds on why prosody needs to be incorporated in speech processing applications and presents methods for extraction and representation of prosody for applications such as speaker recognition language recognition and speech recognition The updated book also includes information on the significance of prosody for emotion recognition and various prosody based approaches for automatic emotion recognition from speech

The Use of Prosody in Speech Recognition Systems Philippe Paul De Backer, 1992 The Integration of Phonetic Knowledge in Speech Technology William J. Barry, William John Barry, Willem A. van Dommelen, 2006-03-31 Continued progress in Speech Technology in the face of ever increasing demands on the performance levels of applications is a challenge to the whole speech and language science community Robust recognition and understanding of spontaneous speech in varied environments good comprehensibility and naturalness of expressive speech synthesis are goals that cannot be achieved without a change of paradigm This book argues for interdisciplinary communication and cooperation in problem solving in general and discusses the interaction between speech and language engineering and phonetics in particular With a number of reports on innovative speech technology research as well as more theoretical discussions it addresses the practical scientific and sometimes the philosophical problems that stand in the way of cross disciplinary collaboration and illuminates some of the many possible ways forward Audience Researchers and professionals in speech technology and computational linguists Verbmobil: Foundations of Speech-to-Speech Translation Wolfgang Wahlster, 2013-04-17 In 1992 it seemed very difficult to answer the question whether it would be possible to develop a portable system for the automatic recognition and translation of spontaneous speech Previous research work on speech processing had focused on read speech only and international projects aimed at automated text translation had just been terminated without achieving their objectives Within this context the German Federal Ministry of Education and Research BMBF made a careful analysis of all national and international research projects conducted in the field of speech and language technology before deciding to launch an eight year basic research lead project in which research groups were to cooperate in an interdisciplinary and international effort covering the disciplines of computer science computational linguistics translation science signal processing communication science and artificial intelligence At some point the project comprised up to 135 work packages with up to 33 research groups working on these packages The project was controlled by means of a network plan Every two years the project situation was assessed and the project goals were updated An international scientific advisory board provided advice for BMBF A new scientific approach was chosen for this project coping with the complexity of spontaneous speech with all its pertinent phenomena such as ambiguities self corrections hesitations and disfluencies took precedence over the intended lexicon size Another important aspect was that prosodic information was exploited at all processing stages

Designing Interactive Speech Systems Niels O. Bernsen, Hans Dybkjaer, Laila Dybkjaer, 2012-12-06 Designing Interactive Speech Systems describes the design and implementation of spoken language dialogue within the context of SLDS spoken language dialogue systems development Using an applications oriented SLDS developed through the Danish Dialogue project the authors describe the complete process involved in designing such a system and in doing so present several innovative practical tools such as dialogue design guidelines in depth evaluation methodologies and speech functionality analysis The approach taken is firmly applications oriented describing the results of research applicable to industry and showing how the development of advanced applications drives research rather than the other way around All those working on the research and development of spoken language services especially in the area of telecommunications will benefit from reading this book

The Neurocognition of Language Colin M. Brown, Peter Hagoort, 2000 an important and captivating book one that has been long awaited by all researchers interested in language and the brain Trends in Cognitive Sciences 1999 The Neurocognition of Language brings together experts on human language and the brain to present the first critical overview of the cognitive neuroscience of language one of the fastest moving and most exciting areas today In depth discussion of the representations and structures of language as well as of the cognitive architectures which underlie speaking listening and reading will provide a basis for future brain imaging research In addition the existing brain imaging literature on word and sentence processing is critically reviewed as well as contributions from brain lesion data Finally the book discusses the prospects and problems of brain imaging techniques for the study of language presents some of the most recent and promising analytic procedures for relating brain imaging data to the higher cognitive functions and contains a review of the neuroanatomical structure of Broca's language area Uniquely interdisciplinary this book will provide researchers and students in cognitive neuroscience with state of the art reviews of the major language functions while being of equal interest to researchers in linguistics and language who want to learn about the neural bases of language It will be an essential purchase for anyone requiring an overview of our current understanding of the relation between language and the brain
