Radiation Protection of Patients R. Wootton, 1993-04 A textbook for medical personnel involved in the administration of radiation for diagnostic or therapeutic purposes      Radiation Protection Euclid Seeram, 1997 his book on radiation protection provides clear coverage of essential concepts plus the latest technology and new recommendations of the International Commission on Radiological Protection A clear presentation of introductory concepts and essential physics explains the nature and scope of radiation protection and a discussion of the bioeffects of radiation provides rationale for today's protection concerns Coverage includes principles and objectives of radiation protection a system of dose limitations dose limits radiation dosimetry protection surveys expressions of patient dose factors influencing radiation dose in imaging dose reduction techniques and quality assurance Safety issues are emphasized as well as recommendations for the prudent use of magnetic resonance imaging      Radiation Protection in Medical Imaging and Radiation Oncology Richard J.

Vetter, Magdalena S. Radiological Protection for Medical Exposure to Ionizing Radiation, 2002 This Safety Guide co sponsored by PAHO and WHO provides recommendations on how safety requirements may be fulfilled for the protection of patients comforters and visitors of patients against exposure to ionizing radiation in medical practice in compliance with Appendix II Medical Exposure of Safety Series No 115 International Basic Safety Standards for Protection against Ionizing Radiation and for the Safety of Radiation Sources 1996 Recommendations cover the establishment of guidance levels for diagnostic medical exposures acceptance testing processes for radiation equipment calibration of radiotherapy units and reporting of accidental medical exposures      Radiation Protection for Medical and Allied Health Personnel National Council on Radiation Protection and Measurements, 1976 In hospital radiation facilities of all types safety procedures for protecting radiation workers and the general public must be carefully planned and supervised and controlled by a qualified staff member To meet currently accepted standards for protection the potential exposures of workers and anyone else in or near a radiation area are evaluated and precautions taken to avert the possibility of exceeding or even approaching the permissible radiation levels Radiation workers employed in these facilities are informed about these safety procedures However there are various individuals involved in the delivery of medical care or in research who are not usually categorized as radiation workers Their duties may occasionally take them into areas where radiation or radioactive materials are present For want of a better term we may group many of these individuals under the title of allied health personnel Among these are physicians nurses technicians and others who are not classified as radiation workers but who occasionally have to deal with radioactive materials or with patients who have received radiopharmaceuticals In addition there are others not directly involved in the care of patients or research who may incidentally be exposed to radiation in the course of their work Such for instance are personnel in institutional shipping and receiving rooms and those engaged in hospital maintenance work Many of these people are concerned about radiation hazards and often suffer misconceptions regarding the subject They sometimes work without instruction or guidance Sometimes they seek out someone to ask questions about radiation and do receive from them careful answers to their questions Too often however they are simply told that everything is all right and that they have no cause to worry One purpose of this report is to note the types of problems encountered and try to give approaches to handling them The Radiation Protection Supervisor is usually aware of potential hazards within an institution but sometimes the problems are not evident even to him From Preface pages iii iv      Radiation Protection of the Patient Walter A.
