Resource Competition And Community Structure:

Resource Competition and Community Structure David Tilman, 2020-03-31 One of the central questions of ecology is why there are so many different kinds of plants and animals Here David Tilman presents a theory of how organisms compete for resources and the way their competition promotes diversity Developing Hutchinson's suggestion that the main cause of diversity is the feeding relations of species this book builds a mechanistic resource based explanation of the structure and functioning of ecological communities In a detailed analysis of the Park Grass Experiments at the Rothamsted Experimental Station in England the author demonstrates that the dramatic results of these 120 years of experimentation are consistent with his theory as are observations in many other natural communities The consumer resource approach of this book is applicable to both animal and plant communities but the majority of Professor Tilman's discussion concentrates on the structure of plant communities All theoretical arguments are developed graphically and formal mathematics is kept to a minimum The final chapters of the book provide some testable speculations about resources and animal communities and explore such problems as the evolution of super species the differences between plant and animal community diversity patterns and the cause of plant succession

Resource Competition James P. Grover, 2012-12-06 As one of the most quantitative of ecological subdisciplines resource competition is an important central area of ecology Recently research into this area has increased dramatically and resource competition models have become more complex The characterisation of this phenomenon is therefore the aim of this book Resource Competition seeks to identify the unifying principles emerging from experimental and theoretical approaches as well as the differences between organisms illustrating that greater knowledge of resource competition will benefit human and environmental welfare This book will serve as an indispensable guide to ecologists evolutionary biologists and environmental managers and all those interested in resource competition as an emerging discipline

Community Ecology Gary George Mittelbach, Brian J. McGill, 2019 Community ecology has undergone a transformation in recent years from a discipline largely focused on processes occurring within a local area to a discipline encompassing a much richer domain of study including the linkages between communities separated in space metacommunity dynamics niche and neutral theory the interplay between ecology and evolution eco evolutionary dynamics and the influence of historical and regional processes in shaping patterns of biodiversity To fully understand these new developments however students continue to need a strong foundation in the study of species interactions and how these interactions are assembled into food webs and other ecological networks This new edition fulfils the book's original aims both as a much needed up to date and accessible introduction to modern community ecology and in identifying the important questions that are yet to be answered This research driven textbook introduces state of the art community ecology to a new generation of students adopting reasoned and balanced perspectives on as yet unresolved issues Community Ecology is suitable for advanced undergraduates graduate students and researchers seeking a broad up to date coverage of ecological concepts at the community level The Theory of Ecological Communities Mark Vellend, 2020-09-15 A plethora of different theories models and concepts make up the field of community ecology Amid this vast body of work is it possible to build one general theory of ecological communities What other scientific areas might serve as a guiding framework As it turns out the core focus of community ecology understanding patterns of diversity and composition of biological variants across space and time is shared by evolutionary biology and its very coherent conceptual framework population genetics theory The Theory of Ecological Communities takes this as a starting point to pull together community ecology s various perspectives into a more unified whole Mark Vellend builds a theory of ecological communities based on four overarching processes selection among species drift dispersal and speciation These are analogues of the four central processes in population genetics theory selection within species drift gene flow and mutation and together they subsume almost all of the many dozens of more specific models built to describe the dynamics of communities of interacting species The result is a theory that allows the effects of many low level processes such as competition facilitation predation disturbance stress succession colonization and local extinction to be understood as the underpinnings of high level processes with widely applicable consequences for ecological communities Reframing the numerous existing ideas in community ecology The Theory of Ecological Communities provides a new way for thinking about biological composition and diversity Tropical Forest Community Ecology Walter Carson, Stefan Schnitzer, 2011-08-31 Historically tropical ecology has been a science often content with descriptive and demographic approaches which is understandable given the difficulty of studying these ecosystems and the need for basic demographic information Nonetheless over the last several years tropical ecologists have begun to test more sophisticated ecological theory and are now beginning to address a broad array of questions that are of particular importance to tropical systems and ecology in general Why are there are so many species in tropical forests and what mechanisms are responsible for the maintenance of that vast species diversity What factors control species coexistence Are there common patterns of species abundance and distribution across broad geographic scales What is the role of trophic interactions in these complex ecosystems How can these fragile ecosystems be conserved Containing contributions from some of the world s leading tropical ecologists Tropical Forest Community Ecology provides a summary of the key issues in the discipline of tropical ecology Includes contributions from some of the world s leading tropical ecologists Covers patterns of species distribution the maintenance of species diversity the community ecology of tropical animals forest regeneration and conservation of tropical ecosystems Perspectives on Plant Competition James Grace, 2012-12-02 Perspectives on Plant Competition is mainly about addressing the many different perspectives in plant competition and finding a common ground among them Its aim is that through this common ground new theories can be created Encompassing 20 chapters this book is divided into three parts Part I Perspectives on the Determinants of Competitive Success consists of eight chapters This section deals mainly on the question of determination of competitive success Different writers put forward various definitions of competition and competitive success to shed light on the question at hand In the second part of this book an opposing set of views regarding the consequences of competitive interactions for the plant community structure is provided This section emphasizes the idea that competition is not the sole force in natural communities Each chapter in this part focuses on a certain aspect of competition as seen in different communities across and within habitats and systems Part III which comprises of four chapters focuses on the competition within the context of interaction of plants with organisms on the other trophic levels The chapters set forth the idea that competition depends on the impacts of herbivores parasites and symbionts The concluding part of the book greatly emphasizes the need to integrate the mechanisms of competition into the framework of the entire food web

Community Ecology Peter J. Morin, 2009-04-13 Community ecology the study of the patterns and processes involving two or more species has developed rapidly in the last two decades driven by new and more sophisticated research techniques advances in mathematical theory and modeling and the increasing pressure on the environment wrought by humans Once a purely descriptive science it is now one of the most forward looking areas of scientific inquiry Morin skillfully guides the reader through the main tenets and central concepts of community ecology competition predation food webs indirect effects habitat selection diversity and succession In an attempt to introduce the reader to the most balanced coverage possible Morin includes examples drawn from both the aquatic and terrestrial realm and from both plant and animal species Balancing theory with experimentation and drawing on exciting new studies to complement the historical foundations of the discipline he also stresses that both the empirical and theoretical approaches are necessary to drive ecology forward into the new millennium The final chapter on applied community ecology ably demonstrates how community ecological processes have a wide environmental relevance Although in its infancy the application of community ecology to emerging problems in human dominated ecosystems could mitigate problems as diverse as management strategies for important diseases transmitted by animals and the restoration and reconstruction of viable communities Required reading for all students and practitioners interested in community phenomena Community Ecology marks an important contribution to the development of this protean discipline The first serious textbook for a decade on one of the keystone subdisciplines of ecology Broad taxonomic and habitat coverage Section on implications of community ecology for environmental issues

Riverine Ecology Volume 1 Susanta Kumar Chakraborty, 2021-03-01 This book is part of a two volume set that offers an innovative approach towards developing methods and tools for assigning conservation categories of threatened taxa and their conservation strategies by way of different phases of eco restoration in the context of freshwater river systems of tropical biogeographic zones The set provides a considerable volume of research on the biodiversity component of river ecosystems seasonal dynamics of physical chemical parameters geo hydrological properties types sources and modes of action of different types of pollution river restoration strategies and methodologies for the ongoing ecological changes of river ecosystems Volume 1 provides an in depth analysis of different theories with international relevance pertaining to the functioning of river ecosystems shaping their structure and contributing ecological services and includes the principles of riverine ecology such as biogeochemical cycles physiography hydrogeology and physico chemical parameters It covers the basic concepts and principles of water within riverine ecosystems and the underlying ecological principles operating to ensure ecological stability and sustainability of the fluvial ecosystem The book explains the ecofunctionality of different geo morphological geo hydrological and physico chemical factors and processes in changing time scales and spaces with special emphasis on the tropical fresh water rivers in India

Competition and Succession in Pastures P. G. Tow, Alec Lazenby, 2000-12-01 This book describes how competition between plant species and succession in plant ecosystems operate in grasslands and grazed pastures both natural and sown It discusses how competition both affects botanical structure productivity and persistence of pastures and is itself regulated by biological environmental and management factors such as grazing animals The book also examines the ways in which competition and succession are analysed evaluated and measured and brings to the agricultural arena the considerable progress made in understanding the principles of competition from theoretical and experimental ecology

Modeling the Plankton-Enhancing the Integration of Biological Knowledge and Mechanistic Understanding Christian

Lindemann, Dag L. Aksnes, Kevin J. Flynn, Susanne Menden-Deuer, 2017-12-28 In light of climate change and allied changes to marine ecosystems mathematical models have become an important tool to examine processes and predict phenomena from local through to global scales In recent years model studies laboratory experiments and a better ecological understanding of the pelagic ecosystem have enabled advancements on fundamental challenges in oceanography including marine production biodiversity and anticipation of future conditions in the ocean This research topic presents a number of studies that investigate functionally diverse organism in a dynamic ocean through diverse and novel modeling approaches

Aquatic Toxicology and Environmental Fate T. M. Poston, Rich Purdy, 1986 Community Ecology Herman A. Verhoef, Peter J. Morin, 2010 Community ecology is the study of the interactions between populations of co existing species Co edited by two prominent community ecologists and featuring contributions from top researchers in the field this book provides a survey of the state of the art in both the theory and applications of the discipline It pays special attention to topology dynamics and the importance of spatial and temporal scale while also looking at applications to emerging problems in human dominated ecosystems including the restoration and reconstruction of viable communities Community Ecology Processes Models and Applications adopts a mainly theoretical approach and focuses on the use of network based theory which remains little explored in standard community ecology textbooks The book includes discussion of the effects of biotic invasions on natural communities the linking of ecological network structure to empirically measured community properties and dynamics the effects of evolution on community patterns and processes and the integration of fundamental interactions into ecological networks A final chapter indicates future research directions for the discipline
