GIS and the Social Sciences Dimitris Ballas, Graham Clarke, Rachel S. Franklin, Andy Newing, 2017-09-18 GIS and the Social Sciences offers a uniquely social science approach on the theory and application of GIS with a range of modern examples It explores how human geography can engage with a variety of important policy issues through linking together GIS and spatial analysis and demonstrates the importance of applied GIS and spatial analysis for solving real world problems in both the public and private sector The book introduces basic theoretical material from a social science perspective and discusses how data are handled in GIS what the standard commands within GIS packages are and what they can offer in terms of spatial analysis It covers the range of applications for which GIS has been primarily used in the social sciences offering a global perspective of examples at a range of spatial scales The book explores the use of GIS in crime health education retail location urban planning transport geodemographics emergency planning and poverty income inequalities It is supplemented with practical activities and datasets that are linked to the content of each chapter and provided on an eResource page The examples are written using ArcMap to show how the user can access data and put the theory in the textbook to applied use using proprietary GIS software This book serves as a useful guide to a social science approach to GIS techniques and applications It provides a range of modern applications of GIS with associated practicals to work through and demonstrates how researcher and policy makers alike can use GIS to plan services more effectively It will prove to be of great interest to geographers as well as the broader social sciences such as sociology crime science health business and marketing

Planning for Retail Development Clifford Guy, 2006-10-11 Written by a leading expert in the field this is the first thorough critical review of retail planning policy in Britain including Scotland and Wales It covers recent changes in government policy and guidance and examines retail policy within a broader economic and social context Planning for Retail Development explains key events and debates in the evolution of retail planning policy at central and local government levels since the 1960s and draws contrasts between the 1980s a period in which retail developers were encouraged by central government to expand away from town centres and the more recent emphasis on protection and promotion of town centres as the most appropriate location for new development The book develops a critical evaluation of past and present retail planning policies based upon analyses of retailers objectives and of typical consumer shopping behaviour Relationships between retail planning and wider societal concerns including sustainable development social inclusion and urban regeneration are also examined and analysed and guidelines for future policy objectives and content are drawn

Data Mining IX A. Zanasi, 2008 Bringing together papers presented at the ninth International Conference on Data Mining this book addresses the developments in this important field Featured topics include data preparation clustering technologies customer relationship management text mining web mining and categorisation methods Rural-urban Marketing Linkages J. D. Tracey-White, 2005-01-01 By 2030 60 percent of the world's population are expected to be living in urban areas Population growth is not solely in larger metropolitan centres the mega cities The numbers of small and intermediate sized urban centres are also increasing and have an important role as links in the marketing system This guide provides a simplified aid to understanding the physical implications of marketing linkages based on a regional planning approach The guide provides a simple planning methodology and framework that focuses on the issue of linking farmers to market outlets for their produce particularly identifying their marketing infrastructure needs The users of the guide are likely to be at national provincial or district levels and could include planners and engineers in ministries and departments of public works and transport planning and marketing officers in ministries and departments of agriculture local authority officers in planning commerce and marketing departments and local authorities communities farmer groups and voluntary organizations concerned to understand marketing constraints and with ensuring that rural producers have better access to markets for their products

Town and Country Planning in the UK Simin Davoudi, David Webb, Geoff Vigar, John Pendlebury, Tim Townshend, Trevor Hart, Vincent Nadin, 2014-12-05 Town and country planning has never been more important to the UK nor more prominent in national debate Planning generates great controversy whether it's spending 80m and four years inquiry into Heathrow's Terminal 5 or the 200 proposed wind turbines in the Shetland Isles On a smaller scale telecoms masts take away house extensions and even fences are often the cause of local conflict Town and Country Planning in the UK has been extensively revised by a new author group This 15th Edition incorporates the major changes to planning introduced by the coalition government elected in 2010 particularly through the National Planning Policy Framework and associated practice guidance and the Localism Act It provides a critical discussion of the systems of planning the procedures for managing development and land use change and the mechanisms for implementing policy and proposals It reviews current policy for sustainable development and the associated economic social and environmental themes relevant to planning in both urban and rural contexts Contemporary arrangements are explained with reference to their historical development the influence of the European Union the roles of central and local government and developing social and economic demands for land use change Detailed consideration is given to the nature of planning and its historical evolution the role of the EU central regional and local government mechanisms for developing policy and managing these changes policies for guiding and delivering housing and economic development sustainable development principles for planning including pollution control the importance of design in planning conserving the heritage community engagement in planning

The many recent changes to the system are explained in detail the new national planning policy framework the impact of the loss of the regional tier in planning and of the insertion of neighbourhood level planning the transition from development control to development management the continued and growing importance of environmental matters in planning community engagement partnership working changes to planning gain and the introduction of the Community Infrastructure Levy and new initiatives across a number of other themes Notes on further reading are provided and at the end of the book there is an extensive bibliography maintaining its reputation as the bible of British planning
