Power in Women's Prisons Mary Bosworth,2017-03-02 This book explores how power is negotiated in women s prisons Drawing on fieldwork conducted in three penal establishments in England it analyses how women manage the restrictions of imprisonment and the manner in which they attempt to resist institutional control It is proposed that power is negotiated on a private individual level as women often resist the institution simply by trying to maintain an image of control over their own lives However their image of themselves as active reasoning agents is undermined by institutional regimes which encourage traditional passive feminine behaviour at the same time as they deny the women their identities and responsibilities as mothers wives girlfriends and sisters Femininity is therefore both the form and the goal of women s imprisonment Yet paradoxically femininity also offers the possibility of resistance because women manage to rebel by appropriating and changing aspects of it Imagining Crime Dr Alison Young,1995-12-18 This book offers an original and challenging reading of the crimino legal complex criminology criminal justice criminal law the media and everyday experiences in the light of cultural studies and feminist theory Through an exploration of the crisis engendered by the failure of the crimino legal complex to solve the problems of crime and criminality Alison Young exposes the cultural dimension of its institutions and practices She analyzes the far reaching effects of the cultural value given to crime showing it to be rooted in a powerful

Lynch, Paul B. Stretesky, 2016-04-22

Few criminologists have drawn attention to the fact that widespread and significant forms of harm such as green or environmental crimes are neglected by criminology Others have suggested that green crimes present the most important challenge to criminology as a discipline This book argues that criminology needs to take green harms more seriously and to be revolutionized so that it forms part of the solution to the large environmental problems currently faced across the world It asks how criminology should be redesigned to consider green environmental harm as a key area of study in an era where destruction of the earth and the world's ecosystem is a major concern and examines why this has remained unaccomplished so far The chapters in this book apply an environmental frame of reference underlying a green approach to issues which can be addressed from within criminology and which can encourage criminologists and environmentalists to respond and react differently to environmental crime Correctional Theory Francis T.
