Publications Mark White Pangborn, 1963 Hearings United States. Congress. House. Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries, 1964 Geology of Holocene Barrier Island Systems Richard A. Jr. Davis, 2012-12-06 Barrier islands represent a complex coastal system that includes a number of different sedimentary depositional environments nearshore zone beach dunes washover fans marshes tidal flats estuaries lagoons and tidal inlets The morphodynamics of these fragile coastal systems provide a further complication to this coastal type Although barrier islands comprise only 15% of the world's coastline they have received a far greater proportion of attention from the scientific and engineering community and more recently from coastal managers and environmentalists Modern barrier islands are arguably the most expensive and most vulnerable of all coastal environments Pressure from developers for residential industrial and recreational development has caused most of our barriers to become significantly impacted by human activity especially over the past few decades These pressures have led to extensive preservation of natural barriers through efforts from all levels of government and also by private organizations. Governments have also formed coastal management programs that help to control any future development with the intent being to keep human activity compatible with barrier island morphodynamics. In order to devise appropriate coastal zone management programs it is necessary to have a comprehensive understanding of the morphodynamics of barrier island systems. This volume provides comprehensive details on barrier island morphology, sediment distribution, and the process response mechanisms that cause changes to both. These are the important aspects of barrier systems that can provide important input into the development and implementation of coastal management programs.
