Symons, Stephen Alsford, Chris Kitzen, 1999-01-01 The Meta Incognita Project was initiated to cast new light on the Arctic voyages of Martin Frobisher and their significance for the histories of North America and Britain Although the Elizabethan venture failed to discover a northwest passage to mines and precious metals and to establish a colony in the future Canadian Arctic it left valuable legacies Published in English Twentieth-Century Shore-Station Whaling in Newfoundland and Labrador Anthony Bertram Dickinson, Chesley W. Sanger, 2005 Newfoundland and Labrador has a long history of commercial whaling beginning in the first half of the sixteenth century when Basque whalers established seasonal stations on the Labrador coast from which to hunt bowheads and North Atlantic right whales Anthony Dickinson and Chesley Sanger examine the region's modern shore station industry from its beginnings in 1896 to its peak catch season in 1904 through subsequent cycles of decline and revival until its enforced closure in 1972 by the federal government Modern shore station whaling on Canada's eastern shores developed with the spread of Norwegian dominated whaling from local areas where stocks that had been depleted by new hunting technologies to more productive locations in the North Atlantic and elsewhere Twentieth Century Shore Station Whaling in Newfoundland and Labrador adds to a growing number of

regionally specific case studies that collectively illustrate the complex nature of the history of global whaling Dickinson and Sanger further demonstrate how participants in the industry were instrumental in developing other whaling initiatives including those in British Columbia John and Sebastian Cabot, the Discovery of North America Charles Raymond Beazley, 1898 Newfoundland in the Nineteenth and Twentieth Centuries James Hiller, Peter Neary, 1980-12-15 The first comprehensive history of Newfoundland was published in 1793 but a centenary and a half passed before the first university course in the history of the island was offered there During the past fifteen years there has been growing activity in the subject This volume is the work of six scholars who have either studied or taught at the Memorial University of Newfoundland Some have done both The book has two broad aims First to point out the major themes of modern Newfoundland history currently being examined and to offer a number of new interpretations of economic and political development in the last two centuries Second to supplement the standard works that are readily available to students In some areas it provides additional details in others it bridges wide gaps The themes considered include an introduction to the writing of Newfoundland history the transition from the purely maritime economy of the nineteenth century to the mixed oceanic and inland resource economy of the twentieth and the difficulties this involved the decline of the traditional cod fishery in the nineteenth century Newfoundland's rejection of confederation in 1896 the limitations imposed by the fisheries agreements Britain negotiated with France and the United States the consequences of the decision to reject confederation and diversify the local economy the growth of the Fisherman's Protective Union the political atmosphere of the 1920s the party politics in the post confederation period and finally the collapse of Newfoundland's oldest industry the saltfish trade and the province's integration into the North American economy This is a book intended for both regional specialists and general students of Canadian history It provides a valuable resource about a province of rapidly growing importance
