Esquith, 2011-02-28 In a world where every person is exposed daily through the mass media to images of violence and suffering as most dramatically exemplified in recent years by the ongoing tragedy in Darfur the question naturally arises What responsibilities do we as bystanders to such social injustice bear in holding accountable those who have created the conditions for this suffering And what is our own complicity in the continuance of such violence it involves settling accounts as well as recognizing our own complicity even as bystanders

In the Process of Becoming Janet Schmalfeldt, 2017-02-03 With their insistence that form is a dialectical process in the music of Beethoven Theodor Adorno and Carl Dahlhaus emerge as the guardians of a long standing critical tradition in which Hegelian concepts have been brought to bear on the question of musical form Janet Schmalfeldt's ground breaking account of the development of this Beethoven Hegelian tradition restores to the term form some of its philosophical associations in the early nineteenth century when profound cultural changes were yielding new relationships between composers and their listeners and when music itself in particular instrumental music became a topic for renewed philosophical investigation Precedents for Adorno's and Dahlhaus's concept of form as process arise in the Athenian Fragments of Friedrich Schlegel and in the Encyclopaedia Logic of Hegel The metaphor common to all these sources is the notion of becoming it is the idea of form coming into being that this study explores in respect to music by Beethoven Schubert Mendelssohn Chopin and Schumann A critical assessment of Dahlhaus's preoccupation with the opening of Beethoven's Tempest Sonata serves as the author's starting point for the translation of philosophical ideas into music analytical terms ones that encourage listening both forward and backward as Adorno has recommended Thanks to the ever growing familiarity of late eighteenth century audiences with formal conventions composers could increasingly trust that performers and listeners would be responsive to striking formal transformations The author's analytic method strives to capture the dynamic quasi narrative nature of such transformations rather than only their end results This experiential approach to the perception of form invites listeners and especially performers to participate in the interpretation of processes by which for example a brooding introduction like opening must inevitably become the essential main theme in Schubert's Sonata Op 42 or in which tremendous formal expansions in movements by Mendelssohn offer a dazzling opportunity for multiple retrospective reinterpretations Above all In the Process of Becoming proposes new ways of hearing beloved works of the romantic generation as representative of their striving for novel intensely self reflective modes of communication Labor in Culture, Or, Worker of the World(s) Peter Hitchcock, 2017-03-29 This book is a cultural critique of labor and globalization that considers whether one can represent the other The cultural representation of labor is a challenge in how globalization is understood Workers may be everywhere in the world but cultural correlatives are problematic By elaborating cultural theory and practice this book examines why this might be so If globalization unites workers via production and capital flows it often writes over traditional or progressive forms of unity Worlds of work have expanded in the last half century yet labor has receded within cultural discourse By considering critical and historical concepts in the workers inquiry the subject and value and provocative projects in cultural representation itself this study expands our lexicon of labor to understand more fully what workers of the world means under globalization As such the book offers broad appeal to students and teachers of Global and Cultural Studies and will interest all those who take seriously how the worker is articulated at a global scale

Contemporary Visual Arts, 2000 Like a Hammer Shattering Rock Megan McKenna, 2013-02-05 Renowned Catholic author Megan McKenna celebrates her 50th book with a controversial interpretation of the Gospels of Mark Matthew Luke and John and what they mean for the Church and society today In many ways modern audiences have become so familiar with the gospels that we've stopped listening and integrating their wisdom into our everyday lives Acclaimed author Megan McKenna explores the messages of the four gospels in the context of daily life when they were originally written and interprets their meaning for our modern world While some argue for the development of new gospels for the 21st century McKenna argues that we haven't paid due attention to the ones we already have in many cases we've ignored sections of these teachings entirely and twisted their meaning to suit our own agendas McKenna breaks it down gospel by gospel and shows us how the lessons of Jesus's apostles continue to resonate Identity and Power in Narratives of Displacement Katrina M. Powell, 2015-02-11 In this book Powell examines the ways that identities are constructed in displacement narratives based on cases of eminent domain natural disaster and civil unrest attending specifically to the rhetorical strategies employed as barriers and boundaries intersect with individual lives She provides a unique method to understand how the displaced move within accepted and subversive discourses and how representation is a crucial component of that movement In addition Powell shows how notions of human rights and the public good are often at odds with individual well being and result in intriguing intersections between discourses of power and discourses of identity Given the ever increasing numbers of displaced persons across the globe and the layers of displacement experienced by many this study sheds light on the resources of rhetoric as means of survival and resistance during the globally common experience of displacement The Body at Risk Carol Squiers, 2005 The Body at Risk Photography of Disorder Illness and Healing is the first book to explore the ways that photojournalists and social documentarians have conceptualized the human subject as a site of both good and ill health The volume looks at photographs depicting child laborers Depression era health programs general medical care in the southern United States at mid century people with HIV AIDS and polio along with their caretakers and the health workers who advocate for them environmental pollution physical and psychological injuries received during warfare domestic violence and emergency care in the modern urban hospital It brings together ten significant bodies of photographs made over the past one hundred years to show how human health topics have been represented for the general public and how the emphasis on health has shifted how photography has been used to present and promote certain points of view about health and the social circumstances that affect it both positively and negatively and how photography has helped shape public knowledge of and opinion about health care and some of the events and circumstances that engender it Migration World Magazine, 2000 Migrant Women of Johannesburg C.
