Page 4 de la couverture Emergent Public Health Issues in the US-Mexico Border Region Cecilia Ballesteros Rosales, Scott Carter Carvajal, Jill Eileen Guernsey De Zapien, 2017-02-16 The US-Mexico border region area has unique social, demographic and policy forces at work that shape the health of its residents as well as serves as a microcosm of migration health challenges facing an increasingly mobile and globalized world. This region reflects the largest migratory flow between any two nations in the world. Data from the Pew Research Center shows over the last 25 years there has never been lower than 140,000 annual immigrants from Mexico to the United States with peaks over 700,000. This migratory route is extremely hazardous due to natural e.g. arid and hot desert regions and human-made barriers as well as border enforcement practices tied to socio-political and geopolitical pressures. Also reflecting the national interdependency of public health and human services needs during the most recent five-year period surveyed, the migratory flow between the US and Mexico has equaled that of the flow of Mexico to the US, both around 1.4 million persons. Of particular public health concern within the US-Mexico region of both nations, there is among the highest disparities in income, education, infrastructure and access to health care factors within the World Health Organization's conceptualization of the
