Hendricks, 2006 Hendricks writes on how towns in backcountry Virginia came about from the designs and ambitions of entrepreneurial individuals They did not just spring up randomly in some pleasing meadow or on some riverbank happened upon by a frontiersman for example or a group which had struck out into the wilderness The people who put these plans for towns into action were motivated by a variety of economic social or philanthropic factors and sometimes purely by circumstance and opportunity These entrepreneurial like individuals were not a part of any organized movement But their activities in toto played a large part in opening up the western parts of Virginia and setting a pattern for westward expansion Among the towns Hendricks studies in larger topological areas such as the Piedmont and the Great Valley Shenandoah are Winchester Marysville Leesburg Woodstock Charlottesville and Brent Town Early maps of many of the towns especially demonstrate the ideas and purposes of their founders Along with the maps the authors specifics on the conception establishment and early period of the many towns makes each oe stand out distinctively The enterprises and goals of the town were as varied as the individuals who conceived them Beyond the Covenant Chain Daniel K. Richter, James H. Merrell, 2010-11-01 For centuries the Western view of the Iroquois was clouded by the myth that they were the supermen of the frontier the Romans of this Western World as De Witt

Clinton called them in 1811 Only in recent years have scholars come to realize the extent to which Europeans had exaggerated the power of the Iroquois First published in 1987 Beyond the Covenant Chain was one of the first studies to acknowledge fully that the Iroquois never had an empire It remains the best study of diplomatic and military relations among Native American groups in seventeenth and eighteenth century North America Published in paperback for the first time it features a new introduction by Richter and Merrell Contributors include Douglas W Boyce Mary A Druke Becker Richard L Haan Francis Jennings Michael N McConnell Theda Perdue and Neal Salisbury
