The Genus Protea in Tropical Africa John Stanley Beard, 1963

Proteas Maryke Middelman, 2012-02-07 South Africa is situated at the Southern most tip of Africa and boasts over 21 000 species of plants all crammed into one country The Cape Floral Kingdom the smallest of the six floral kingdoms of the world occupies a mere 90 000 square kilometers in the south western corner of South Africa yet it is home to over 8 500 species of plants By comparison the British Isles which is three and a half times larger than this support only 1 400 species Only the Panama rain forest has a comparable species density to the Cape Floral Kingdom The earliest record is that of a Dutch missionary who gathered plants in 1624 when his ship replenished its water supply on the return voyage from Batavia to Holland His descriptions and drawings gave the world its first clues to a treasure house of new and exciting plants along its shores Various botanists visited the Cape in the years that followed and by the year 1700 nearly 1 000 Cape plants were known The flowers most commonly associated with South Africa are of course the proteas named by Linnaeus after the Greek god Proteus who was able to assume many different forms The name is apt as proteas are found in all shapes They may like Protea cynaroides the South African floral emblem have enormous flower heads but there are species that have flowers heads of only 30 mm diameter They even come as trees like the world famous silver tree Leucadendron argenteum This tree was reported to be cultivated in Kew Gardens England as early as 1789 The Scottish botanist Francis Masson on a great voyage around the world with Captain Cook collected no less than 400 species of plants new to scientists of Europe including 79 specimens of protea and 50 species of Cape pelargonium commonly but incorrectly known as geraniums It is difficult to compare the small sweet smelling Freesia found in the flora of the Western Cape with the impressive long stemmed Freesias which are now sold worldwide as cut flowers At the auctions in Holland Freesias worth more than 100 million US are sold annually The so called Guernsey lily is actually just another bulb from the Cape the Nerine sarniensis One explanation of how Nerine reached Guernsey is that a Dutch ship homeward bound from the Far East was wrecked on the Channel Islands On board were boxes of Cape bulbs consigned to Holland Washed ashore on Guernsey the bulbs took root and in due course to the astonishment and delight of the inhabitants flowered One of the first flowers to be shipped commercially to Europe was the Ornithogalum or Chinchinchee which because of its extremely long shelf life could be sent by sea They were in high demand in the early 1950s and seem to have made a come back with new varieties Countries such as the Netherlands Japan and Germany have developed enormous horticultural industries over the years by focusing their efforts on breeding and selection of plants many of which are native to South Africa including gladioli freesias lobelia to name but a few Proteas were not commercialised until much later because they were difficult to propagate The author had access to numerous magazine and newspaper clippings from around the world which came into her possession after the death of Walter Middelmann who was known by the family to be a great collector of books and cuttings on the many subjects that interested him This together with documents of the South African Protea Producers and Exporters Association SAPPEX and the International Protea Association IPA as well as other associations world wide makes for an interesting history It all started with wild harvesting in the early 1960s to cultivar development up to 2010 The author was the chairman of both SAPPEX and IPA for many years She was also editor of both SAPPEX News quarterly and the IPA Journal bi annually from which a wealth of information was available Apart from these documents she also relied on

The Proteas of Southern Africa John P. Rourke,1982 Proteas of the Fynbos John Manning,2025-04-01 Proteas are South Africa s wildflower celebrities the King Protea is emblazoned on the National Coat of Arms and gives its name to the country s cricket team A total of 330 protea species are found in the fynbos of the Cape Floristic Region the botanical treasure house at the southern tip of Africa Proteas of the Fynbos features 165 of the region s more common or showy species with pointers to many more Each species account details diagnostic features flowering times habitats and distribution while colour photographs showcase the beauty and diversity of this charismatic plant group An informative introduction explores the biology pollination origin and conservation status of fynbos proteas and highlights features to aid identification Arranged in groups and subgroups for easy identification this innovative guide enables flower enthusiasts to confidently identify over half of all fynbos protea species Sales points Accessible and user friendly design Full colour photographs of each species Key ID features highlighted for quick reference

Cultivated Plants of Southern Africa H. F. Glen,2002 A listing of almost 9000 kinds of plants known to be cultivated in Southern Africa or to have been tried here The information is derived from a database containing details mainly of specimens archived in the National Herbarium Pretoria

The Genus Protea in Tropical Africa John Stewart Beard,1963 Field Guide to Wild Flowers of South Africa John Manning,2013-08-22 Field Guide to Wildflowers of South Africa describes more than 1 100 of the shrubs and herbs of the region highlighting the most conspicuous species and those most likely to be encountered across the country The emphasis is on identifying plants progressively to family genus and species level a novel identification aid and easy to use keys guide users to the correct family and genus while individual species descriptions accompanied by a clear photograph distribution map and an indication of flowering season help them to pinpoint the plant By using the guide wild flower enthusiasts at all levels will now be able to accurately identify plants in any part of South africa

Molecular Panbiogeography of the Tropics Michael Heads,2012 Molecular Panbiogeography of the Tropics is an alternative view of distributional history in which groups are older than suggested by fossils and fossil calibrated molecular clocks It discusses possible causes for the endemism of high level taxa in tropical America and Madagascar
