Atmospheric Science at NASA Erik M. Conway, 2008-12-08 Honorable Mention 2008 ASLI Choice Awards Atmospheric Science Librarians International This book offers an informed and revealing account of NASA s involvement in the scientific understanding of the Earth s atmosphere Since the nineteenth century scientists have attempted to understand the complex processes of the Earth s atmosphere and the weather created within it This effort has evolved with the development of new technologies from the first instrument equipped weather balloons to multibillion dollar meteorological satellite and planetary science programs Erik M Conway chronicles the history of atmospheric science at NASA tracing the story from its beginnings in 1958 the International Geophysical Year through to the present focusing on NASA s programs and research in meteorology stratospheric ozone depletion and planetary climates and global warming But the story is not only a scientific one NASA s researchers operated within an often politically contentious environment Although environmental issues garnered strong public and political support in the 1970s the following decades saw increased opposition to environmentalism as a threat to free market capitalism Atmospheric Science at NASA critically examines this politically controversial science dissecting the often convoluted roles motives and relationships of the various institutional actors involved among them NASA congressional appropriation committees government weather and climate bureaus and the military

Science and Technology in the Global Cold War Naomi Oreskes, John Krige, 2014-10-31 Investigations of how the global Cold War shaped national scientific and technological practices in fields from biomedicine to rocket science The Cold War period saw a dramatic expansion of state funded science and technology research Government and military patronage shaped Cold War technoscientific practices imposing methods that were project oriented team based and subject to national security restrictions These changes affected not just the arms race and the space race but also research in agriculture biomedicine computer science ecology meteorology and other fields This volume examines science and technology in the context of the Cold War considering whether the new institutions and institutional arrangements that emerged globally constrained technoscientific inquiry or offered greater opportunities for it The contributors find that whatever the particular science and whatever the political system in which that science was operating the knowledge that was produced bore some relation to the goals of the nation state These goals varied from nation to nation weapons research was emphasized in the United States and the Soviet Union for example but in France and China scientific independence and self reliance dominated The contributors also consider to what extent the changes to science and technology practices in this era were produced by the specific politics anxieties and aspirations of the Cold War Contributors Elena Aronova Erik M Conway Angela N H Creager David Kaiser John Krige Naomi Oreskes George Reisch Sigrid Schmalzer Sonja D Schmid Matthew Shindell Asif A Siddiqi Zuoyue Wang Benjamin Wilson Today's Environmental Issues Teri J. Twenty Years of Ozone Decline Christos Zerefos, G. Contopoulos, Gregory Skalkas, 2009-05-24 Homer speaks of lightning bolts after which a grim reek of sulphur bursts forth and the air was filled with reeking brimstone Homer 3000 BC The odour was not actually the smell of sulphur dioxide associated with burning sulphur but rather was the first recorded detection of the presence of another strong odour that of ozone O_3 in Earth's atmosphere These molecules were formed by the passage of lightning through the air created by splitting the abundant molecular oxygen O_2 molecules into two followed by the addition of each of the free O atoms to another O to form the triatomic product In fact most of the ozone molecules present in the atmosphere at any time have been made by this same two step splitting plus combination process although the initiating cause usually begins with very energetic solar ultraviolet UV radiation rather than lightning Many thousands of years later the modern history of ozone began with its synthesis in the laboratory of H F Schonbein in 1840 Nolte 1999 although the positive confirmation of its three oxygen atom chemical formula came along sometime later Scientific interest in high altitude stratospheric ozone dates back to 1881 when Hartley measured the spectrum of ozone in the laboratory and found that its ability to absorb UV light extended only to 293nm at the long wavelength end Hartley 1881a

Societal Impact of Spaceflight Steven J. Dick, Roger D. Launius, 2007 Since the dawn of spaceflight advocates of a robust space effort have argued that human activity beyond Earth makes a significant difference in everyday life Assertions abound about the impact of spaceflight on society and its relationship to the larger contours of human existence Fifty years after the Space Age began it is time to examine the effects of spaceflight on society in a historically rigorous way Has the Space Age indeed had a significant effect on society If so what are those influences What do we mean by an impact on society And what parts of society Conversely has society had any effect on spaceflight What would be different had there been no Space Age The purpose of this volume is to examine these and related questions through scholarly research making use especially of the tools of the historian and the broader social sciences and humanities Herein a stellar array of scholars does just that and arrives at sometimes surprising conclusions
