Provincial England W. G. Hoskins, 1968 Provincial England William G. Hoskins, 1965 British Economic and Social History R. C. Richardson, William Henry Chaloner, 1996 Famine, Disease and the Social Order in Early Modern Society John Walter, Roger Schofield, Andrew B. Appleby, 1991-04-26 An examination of the complex interrelationships among past demographic social and economic structures demonstrates how the impact of hunger and disease can enhance the exploration of early modern society Lordship and Community Cord Oestmann, 1994 The everyday lives of ordinary villagers their attitudes and responses to their physical and spiritual surroundings are brought into close focus the impact of matters ranging from ecclesiastical reform to basic matters such as birth and death are revealed at all levels of village society in particular the relationship of the Lestrangle family to the village and its inhabitants Rural Society and Economic Change in County Durham A. T. Brown, 2015 In the middle of the fifteenth century the economy of north east England was beset by crises population was low production was stagnant and many landowners faced penury By the end of the sixteenth century however the precocious development of the coal industry and high levels of inflation provided opportunities for investment and profit in the Durham countryside This book examines the development of agrarian capitalism estate management tenure and the land market social mobility the gentrification of merchant wealth and the emergence of the yeomanry during this period in the region It looks at such questions as how the coal industry was affected by the fifteenth century recession and the effects its rapid expansion had upon landed society reassesses debates on the rise of the gentry and the crisis of the aristocracy and considers how the wholesale economic changes of this period affected the social structure of late medieval and early modern England Although this period is often seen as a transitional era this book argues that it needs to be studied as one long agrarian cycle showing the degree to which patterns of landholding fixed during the fifteenth century recession affected the distribution of profits between different types of lords and tenants in the sixteenth and early seventeenth century A T Brown is an Addison Wheeler Fellow at Durham University The Emergence of International Business, 1200-1800: Enterprise and empire Theodore K. Rabb, 1999 Presents a history of commerce covering such topics as colonial expansion credit and banking and the development of trading companies Edinburgh and the Reformation Michael Lynch, 2004-01-20 Edinburgh s reformation was one of the last of the great city reformations of the sixteenth century It took on a highly distinctive shape due to the burgh s social and economic problems and its position as a cockpit for English policy in Scotland and the shifting factionalism of Scottish politics In studies of the Scottish Reformation too little attention has been paid to the nature of Scottish society itself In a society so conscious of rank tradition and precedent the Reformation was only likely to make progress where it did not disturb the existing order and in Edinburgh the new religion was obliged to work within the natural constraints of burgh life This book shows that the early promise of the Protestant reformers of a new society provoked a backlash and had to be abandoned for a new conciliatory approach The result was that power remained in much the same hands in the 1580s as it had in the 1540s with one real difference there was more of it The Transformation of a Peasant Economy John Goodacre, 2017-07-28 The market town has been dismissed as an incompletely formed urban community in fact it was the primary urban unit in pre industrial England This study places the market town at the centre of the transformation of early modern England both catalysing changes in agriculture and experiencing in a distinctive fashion the urbanisation that was to occur a century or more later in the great industrial and commercial centres of Europe In the two centuries after 1500 the rural economy changed from a pattern of subsistence to improved farming The first great enclosures took place during this time but the economic base for this revolution was the growth of local trading centred on markets and local communications networks This redistribution of produce provisions and information was the motor of specialisation and hence modernisation The strength of this study is in its detailed research into this process in one representative locality and the sensitive extrapolation of local experiences on to the national and European scale By integrating in one book the themes of rural transformation and early urbanisation this account of one typical midland market town demonstrates the continuing vigour of the discipline of local history Indian Journal of Economics ,1964
