Psychiatry Key Questions Answered:

Problems of Living Dan J. Stein, 2021-05-11 Problems of Living Perspectives from Philosophy Psychiatry and Cognitive Affective Science addresses philosophical questions related to problems of living including questions about the nature of the brain mind reason and emotion happiness and suffering goodness and truth and the meaning of life It draws on critical pragmatic and embodied realism as well as moral naturalism and brings arguments from metaphysics epistemology and ethics together with data from cognitive affective science This multidisciplinary integrated approach provides a novel framework for considering not only the nature of mental disorders but also broader issues in mental health such as finding pleasure and purpose in life Draws on the strongest aspects of polar positions in philosophy and psychiatry to help resolve important perennial debates in these fields Explores continuities between early philosophical work and current cognitive affective sciences including neuroscience and psychology Employs findings from modern cognitive affective science to rethink key long standing debates in philosophy and psychiatry Builds on work showing how mind is embodied in the brain and embedded in society to provide an integrated conceptual framework Assesses both the insights and the limitations of cognitive affective science for addressing the big questions and hard problems of living

Philosophical Issues in Psychiatry IV Kenneth S. Kendler, Josef Parnas, 2017-04-06 The revisions of both DSM IV and ICD 10 have again focused the interest of the field of psychiatry and clinical psychology on the issue of nosology This interest has been further heightened by a series of controversies associated with the development of DSM 5 including the fate of proposed revisions of the personality disorders bereavement and the autism spectrum Major debate arose within the DSM process about the criteria for changing criteria leading to the creation of first the Scientific Review Committee and then a series of other oversight committees which weighed in on the final debates on the most controversial proposed additions to DSM 5 providing important influences on the final decisions Contained within these debates were a range of conceptual and philosophical issues Some of these such as the definition of mental disorder or the problems of psychiatric epidemics have been with the field for a long time Others the concept of epistemic iteration as a framework for the introduction of nosologic change are quite new This book reviews issues within psychiatric nosology from clinical historical and particularly philosophical perspectives The book brings together a range of distinguished authors including major psychiatric researchers clinicians historians and especially nosologists including several leaders of the DSM 5 effort and the DSM Steering Committee It also includes contributions from psychologists with a special interest in psychiatric nosology and philosophers with a wide range of orientations The book is organized into four major sections The first explores the nature of psychiatric illness and the way in which it is defined including clinical and psychometric perspectives The second section examines problems in the reification of psychiatric diagnostic criteria the problem of psychiatric epidemics and the nature and definition of individual symptoms The third section explores the concept of epistemic iteration as a possible governing conceptual framework for the revision efforts for official psychiatric nosologies such as DSM and ICD and the problems of validation of psychiatric diagnoses The book ends by exploring how we might move from the descriptive to the etiologic in psychiatric diagnoses the nature of progress in psychiatric research and the possible benefits of moving to a living document or continuous improvement model for psychiatric nosologic systems The result is a book that captures the dynamic cross disciplinary interactions that characterize the best work in the philosophy of psychiatry
