Energy Information Administration,1996 Climate Change 1995: Economic and Social

Dimensions of Climate Change Hoesung Yi, Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change. Working Group III., 1996-06-27 The consequences of climate change for society are analysed in this landmark assessment from the IPCC. This book assesses the available knowledge on the many issues that society has to face including the international decision making framework, applicability to climate change of techniques for assessing costs and benefits, the significant social costs of projected climate change and the economic assessment of policy instruments to combat climate change nationally and internationally. Some important conclusions of this Second Assessment Report indicate that 10 to 30% of greenhouse gas emissions in most countries can be reduced at negative or zero cost: no regrets measures. Also the literature indicates that climate change will cause aggregate net damage which provides an economic rationale for going beyond no regrets measures. It also indicates that a portfolio of mitigation, adaptation and research measures is a sound strategy for addressing climate change given the remaining uncertainties. This report speaks directly to the issues that are faced by the many countries committed to limit emissions of greenhouse gases by the year 2000 and currently negotiating actions to be taken beyond that date. Will be of great value to the international community of policymakers interested in the consequences of climate change as well as to economists, social and natural scientists.
