Scrutinising Science The Changing Uk Government Of Science:

Scrutinising Science R. Boden,D. Cox,M. Nedeva,K. Barker,2003-12-17 By the 1980s UK government research laboratories were an often quirky but always essential part of the state sector In one of the most radical experiments in the organization and management of scientific research attempted in the UK successive Conservative governments sought to reform these laboratories by applying the market based solution of New Public Management Scrutinising Science explores and critiques that reform process by examining the laboratories new organizational forms the new visions of what science is for implicit in the reform agenda and the new forms of scientific knowledge production that have arisen as a consequence

Scrutinising Science Rebecca Boden,2004 For many laboratories this meant some form of privatisation for the remainder it meant a significant degree of marketisation within the public sector Scrutinising Science explores and critiques that reform process by examining the laboratories new organisational forms the new visions of what science is for as defined in the reform agenda and the new forms of scientific knowledge production that have arisen as a consequence BOOK JACKET

Innovation, Science, and Institutional Change Jerald Hage,Marius T. H. Meeus,2006-10-26 Innovation is a key factor not just in the research design process but in policy institutions society This handbook is unique in examining research findings new theoretical models relating to innovation at a number of analytic levels projects organizations industrial sectors society Handbook on the Politics of Higher Education Brendan Cantwell,Hamish Coate,Roger King,2018 Understanding the politics of Higher Education is becoming more important as the sector is increasingly recognised as a vital source of innovation skills economic prosperity and personal wellbeing Yet key political differences remain over such issues as who should pay for higher education how should it be accountable and how we measure its quality and productivity Particularly are states or markets the key in helping to address such matters The Handbook provides framing perspectives and perspectives chapters on funding governance and regulation and pieces on the political economy of higher education and on the increased role of external stakeholders and indicators Innovation, Science, Environment 06/07 G. Bruce

Doern,2006-02-14 Topics include the Martin liberals and changing ISE policies the federal sustainable development strategy process the National Research Council s response to changing federal agendas a comparison of Canadian and UK innovation strategies the Natural Sciences and Engineering Research Council and the Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council innovation strategy and the mining supply and service sector environmental industries and the role of the Canadian Environmental Technology Advancement Centres local innovation and source water protection and information disclosure as an environmental policy instrument Towards European Science Linda Wedlin,Maria Nedeva,2015-12-18 Since the European Research Area was launched at the beginning of the century significant efforts have been made to realise the vision of a coherent space for science and research in Europe But how does one define such a space and measure its development This timely book analyses the dynamics of change in the policy and governance of science and research within

Europe over the past decade It widens the scope of traditional policy analysis by focusing attention on the interaction between policy rationales new governance mechanisms and the organisational dynamics of the scientific field The contributors build a novel analytical framework to understand the European research space as one shifting from a fragmented space of Science in Europe to one that is labeled European Science The chapters explore the dynamics of this shift through the lenses of political science organisation theory science policy and related analytical traditions Towards European Science is an interdisciplinary book which will attract a wide set of scholars and professionals interested in science policy governance and scientific practice It will also be of use to university leaders and managers as well as policy makers and practitioners working on issues of internationalisation and the Europeanisation of science

Research for the Developing World Bruce Currie-Alder, 2015-10-08 Research for the developing world can generate evidence on the effectiveness of foreign aid invent new technologies that serve poor people and strengthen research capabilities in poor countries How do countries determine which of these policy goals to pursue Examining the United Kingdom Canada and Australia reveals how each country established a unique approach to research funding Programs and grantmaking evolved in response to various expectations across government tempered by the need to remain credible in the scientific community This book explores the histories of the UK Department for International Development DFID Canada s International Development Research Centre IDRC and the Australian Centre for International Agricultural Research ACIAR Looking back changes in research governance encouraged a shift towards whole of government priorities shorter timeframes for realizing results and performance predicated on academic productivity and research impact Whereas funders used to encourage small is beautiful with local experiments in development today the emphasis is on getting to scale delivering innovation through self financing models Looking forward research for the developing world is fading as part of development assistance yet rising as collaboration on common global challenges Funders are adopting new definitions of performance and actively shaping policy to connect science and international development Leaders are brokering partnerships that connect research governance at home and abroad bridging the incentives towards academic productivity and research impact In short the future of research for the developing world is moving from foreign aid to science diplomacy

Strategic Science in the Public Interest G. Bruce Doern,Jeffrey S. Kinder,Jeff Kinder,2007-01-01 The past twenty years have seen considerable shifts and struggles in government science that is in the way the state funds supports regulates conducts and uses scientific and technological activity Focusing on federal labs and agencies Strategic Science in the Public Interest explores how these labs have been located within and often buried by the larger commercially focussed federal innovation agenda G Bruce Doern and Jeffrey S Kinder examine four labs whose mandates deal with the Alberta oil sands environmental technologies wildlife research and mining and metals respectively The authors use these cases to explain why a better middle level approach to analysis is needed for strategic public interest centred government science They illustrate the importance of understanding the variety as well as the similarity of federal science and technology labs and agencies and of instituting policies that reflect this diversity The growing importance of Related Science Activities RSA is also explored as well as the core trade offs between commercial and public goods science in their mandates and their internal capacities

Society, Culture and Technology at the Dawn of the 21st Century Katarzyna Leszczyńska,Janusz Mucha,2010-04-16 The articles in this collection analyse methodological aspects of today s hard sciences and humanities and of applied research in the field of high technology The authors explore structural and cultural contexts of scientific research relations between information technologies and our everyday life as well as relations between innovation and business culture Applied Science Robert Bud,2024-03-28 For almost two centuries the category of applied science was widely taken to be both real and important Then its use faded How could an entire category of science appear and disappear By taking a longue dur e approach to British attitudes across the nineteenth and twentieth centuries Robert Bud explores the scientific and cultural trends that led to such a dramatic rise and fall He traces the prospects and consequences that gave the term meaning from its origins to its heyday as an elixir to cure many of the economic cultural and political ills of the UK eventually overtaken by its competitor technology Bud examines how applied science was shaped by educational and research institutions sociotechnical imaginaries and political ideologies and explores the extent to which non scientific lay opinion mediated by politicians and newspapers could become a driver in the classification of science Higher Education and National Development David Bridges,Palmira Juceviciene,Roberta Jucevicius,Terence H. Mclaughlin,Jolanta Stankeviciute,2006-11-27 Universities and societies around the world are involved in significant transition Universities are now invited to expand their central aims and purposes in order to embrace a role in relation to the development of the societies in which they are located This change of focus has major implications for curricula modes of teaching and the student body International contributors to this wideranging text discuss different aspects of the phenomenon of globalisation in relation to higher education but also in relation to moves by nation states to devolve government to regional and subregional bodies and the implications this has for educational systems Innovation, Science, Environment 07/08 Carleton University. School of Public Policy and Administration, 2007 The impact of climate change is becoming increasingly obvious around the world but different levels of the Canadian government are failing to respond cohesively For example the Harper government immediately cut several liberal era environmental research programs and admitted that Canada has been moving away from Kyoto Protocol targets and that the Kyoto Protocol is not central to its idea of either good environmental or good energy policy Meanwhile a Quebec liberal government announced that it would introduce a carbon tax to reduce CO2 emissions by 10 million tons by 2012 while Canada's mayors introduced their own climate change initiatives linking them to local infrastructure development This second volume in the ISE series examines the reshaping of ISE policy in the context of multi level governance and policy Contributors examine climate change policy innovation in the natural resources sector the internet pharmacy trade biotechnology policy and governance provincial government renewable energy policies the psychological and human nature connection with sustainable development policies procurement policy and innovation the Canadian Institutes of Health Research and the commercialization of Canada's universities Collecting and Interpreting Qualitative Materials Norman K. Denzin, Yvonna S. Lincoln, 2012-10-24 This book is the third of three paperback volumes taken from The SAGE Handbook of Qualitative Research Fourth Edition It introduces the researcher to basic methods of gathering analyzing and interpreting qualitative empirical materials Part 1 moves from narrative inquiry to critical arts based inquiry to oral history observations visual methodologies and autoethnographic methods It then takes up analysis methods including computer assisted methodologies focus groups as well as strategies for analyzing talk and text The chapters in Part II discuss evidence interpretive adequacy forms of representation post qualitative inquiry the new information technologies and research the politics of evidence writing and evaluation practices A History of Genomics across Species, Communities and Projects Miguel García-Sancho, James Lowe, 2023-03-31 This open access book offers a comprehensive overview of the history of genomics across three different species and four decades from the 1980s to the recent past It takes an inclusive approach in order to capture not only the international initiatives to map and sequence the genomes of various organisms but also the work of smaller scale institutions engaged in the mapping and sequencing of yeast human and pig DNA In doing so the authors expand the historiographical lens of genomics from a focus on large scale projects to other forms of organisation They show how practices such as genome mapping sequence assembly and annotation are as essential as DNA sequencing in the history of genomics and argue that existing depictions of genomics are too closely associated with the Human Genome Project Exploring the use of genomic tools by biochemists cell biologists and medical and agriculturally oriented geneticists this book portrays the history of genomics as inseparably entangled with the day to day practices and objectives of these communities The authors also uncover often forgotten actors such as the European Commission a crucial funder and forger of collaborative networks undertaking genomic projects In examining historical trajectories across species communities and projects the book provides new insights on genomics its dramatic expansion during the late twentieth century and its developments in the twenty first century Offering the first extensive critical examination of the nature and historicity of reference genomes this book demonstrates how their affordances and limitations are shaped by the involvement or absence of particular communities in their production

Research Outside The Academy Lisa Börjesson,Isto Huvila,2018-09-04 This book analyses the practical information related dimensions of professional knowledge making and communication in extra academic organisations It treats the sites where research takes place and where knowledge is created outside academia in the light among other things of new digital resources It provides valuable insight into the practices through which extra academic research data and results are produced and made available and the settings in which this takes place With case studies of knowledge making in government organizations and state research institutes as well as in cultural and heritage institutions this book broadens the perspective on knowledge sharing communication and publication and how knowing changes as a result of the professional knowledge making practices in the digital age Research outside the Academy is ideal for students at all levels looking for an introduction to the topic of research and knowledge making in society Moreover researchers and professionals in the fields of library and information science and science and technology studies will find the book to be adding to previous understandings of scholarly documentation and communication

The Crisis of Innovation in Water and Wastewater Duncan A. Thomas,Roger R. Ford,2005-01-01 This is an extremely well researched and documented book The authors hypothesis is that the current water and wastewater sector is failing the populations of the western world by clinging to orthodox and short term visions of new technology and innovation and also failing the developing nations by believing that delivery of western world high technology solutions is a contribution to humanitarian development This is the crisis of innovation To many practitioners in the water industry the book will be perceived to be hypercritical of the incrementalism conservative and dogged traditionalism of the sector but in fact it is stimulating and positive In the latter chapters an alternate more holistic model of water development is described There needs to be a movement from large central infrastructure resources to distributed systems that are more appropriate to local needs and can be coupled with environmentally sustainable energy sources and practices Tim Lack European Topic Centre on Water UK Whilst acknowledging a massive leap from standpipe to universal water provision in 100 years in developed countries the authors of this book see problems for global sustainable water supply and wastewater removal in the future Using the UK water industry as an example they describe the global water industry as risk averse and unwilling to innovate a view that is encouraged by the institutional and financial regimes under which it works The book explores the reasons for concern and sets out some hard hitting views on how the water industry is failing to identify and tackle the essential problems in a world which is becoming ever more depleted of fresh water The concluding chapter brings to a focus the problems of the crisis in innovation and gives some concrete suggestions for tackling them This volume should raise the awareness of policymakers and regulators technologists and concerned members of the public Peter Chave Independent Consultant and formerly Head of Pollution Control National Rivers Authority UK This significant new book highlights a little acknowledged but potentially catastrophic crisis of innovation in the global water sector which institutions and industries are frighteningly ill equipped to tackle or even accept It suggests potential new technology and policy approaches to overcome both current and future problems The book explores how technological innovation is vital to help provide sustainable water in both the UK and developing countries However innovation is being overlooked in the face of global trends to privatize and regulate water utilities The authors highlight how the global water sector is failing to respond to increasingly complex world needs and continues to build largely unsustainable centralized infrastructures opposing more appropriate distributed and local modern technologies The book also includes suggestions for potentially innovative technology and policy solutions to meet escalating global water and wastewater demands Importantly the authors adopt a long term perspective that crosses both disciplinary and institutional boundaries and include an international comparative perspective covering a diverse range of examples and countries This comprehensive book will have a broad appeal amongst researchers and academics with an interest in technology management innovation studies geography and development studies It will also be a valuable asset for water regulators and governmental and non governmental organisations working in this field

Putting science and engineering at the heart of government policy Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Innovation, Universities, Science and Skills Committee,2009-07-23 A report that considers the broad issue of why science and engineering are important and why they should be at the heart of Government policy It also considers three more specific issues the debate on strategic priorities the principles that inform science funding decisions and the scrutiny of science and engineering across Government

Economics of the European Union Michael Artis,Frederick Nixon,2007-05-17 The new edition of this successful text analyses the current economic issues facing a rapidly changing Europe The authors combine policy history and data to present a global perspective of the EU written with a range of students taking an introductory module in European Economics in mind With new material on the economic relationship between the EU and the US Enlargement and the Lisbon process the authors consider the changing landscape and Europe s development as a major global player The authors use history theory and analysis including comparative data to evaluate Economic policies ranging from the Common Agricultural Policy and Competition Policy to Social Policy and Monetary Policy and to assess issues such as unemployment and foreign aid The contributors are drawn from a range of Universities such as Vienna Manchester Brussels LSE and Purdue as well as institutions such as the IMF and the European Central Bank
