Searching For Certainty Inside The New Canadian Mindset:

How Ottawa Spends 2004-2005 G. Bruce Doern, 2004 Drawing on the work of academics and other experts from across Canada Carleton University's School of Public Policy and Administration's annual book takes a focused and robust look at an era where a political coronation seemed inevitable but high expectations had to be managed downwards almost immediately. A less than buoyant fiscal surplus escalating concerns about liberal ethics and corruption and a growing volatility in public opinion are examined as are Canadians' increasingly uncertain views about the new Liberal leadership versus the old Liberal Party's ten year hold on power. A new Conservative Party and a suddenly feisty New Democratic Party are also a central part of the new 2004-2005 Canadian political and policy milieu.

The World in Canada David Bercuson, 2008-02-07 Just as Canada is increasingly at home in the world the world is increasingly finding a home in Canada. The World in Canada confronts three questions: What are the implications of the dramatic and sustained shift in the Canadian ethnic mosaic for foreign policy? In what ways do diasporas influence Canadian foreign policy? What impact will and should Canada's demographic changes have on Canadian foreign policy in the long term?

The Canadian Alternative Klaus Martens, 2004

Searching for Certainty Darrell Jay Bricker, Edward Greenspon, 2001 The 1990s was a decade of reckoning that compressed our spirits as well as our bank accounts. We hunkered down through a prolonged winter of decline before finally at decade's end emerging to breathe in the first stirrings of national recovery. The long journey tested our confidence in the country, its governments, our employers and even ourselves. Happily we discovered a new inner strength and the wisdom to take advantage of global trends and to build a new social and cultural Canada in the post-Trudeau era. From Searching for Certainty Darrell Bricker, president of the leading market research firm in Canada and Ed Greenspon, political columnist for The Globe and Mail join forces to offer a comprehensive report on the new economic, social and cultural Canada: the dramatic changes wrought by globalization and technological innovation over the last two decades as well as the more subtle shifts in how we approach work, health care and education. Using the most up to date and complete data available they analyze economic trends from global trade to the workplace and trace the ways in which Canadian society and culture have been transformed. They reveal that Canada has emerged from the late twentieth century a stronger and more dynamic society. Far from becoming more American the new mindset is steeped in Canadian traditions of tolerance and community. In the aftermath of the 1990s Canada is a society searching more than ever before for certainty not promises for quality of life not quantity of goods. One example a decade ago Canadians had never heard of the Internet and the public equated new technology with job loss. By the fall of 2000 70 per cent of adults more than 15 million individuals were connected to the Internet at home or work or school. By the end of 2001 four out of five Canadians will probably enjoy access. How is the Internet changing our health care, our political unity, how we shop even our power in relation to governments and corporations? Searching for Certainty is a smart and entertaining fact filled account of how the changes over the last two decades affect us now and will determine how we feel and what we want tomorrow Combining demographic statistics with a journalist's keen eye for real life stories Bricker and Greenspon offer valuable insights for business and public policy and practical tips on how to survive and prosper in the new economy

The People's House of Commons David E. Smith, 2007-04-21 Canada's House of Commons has come under considerable attack in recent years Many critics have contended that the House has been unresponsive to public opinion and that its party leaders have too much control while leaving individual MPs essentially powerless The House has also faced challenges by the courts since the introduction of the Charter a powerful bureaucracy equipped with specialized knowledge and new telecommunications systems that are redefining the transfer of information Through an examination of academic judicial political and legal commentary The People's House of Commons explores the role of the House as a public institution While addressing much of the criticism that has been levelled at the House David E Smith considers the competing political models and inherent tensions and their affect on public understanding Smith maintains that court decisions are transforming the political system from one dominated by parties to one that promotes individual participation He argues that reforms such as fixed election dates or stronger parliamentary committees have constitutional significance since their implementation would alter the practice of responsible government which for more than a century has been a party government A definitive work by one of Canada's foremost experts in the field of political science The People's House of Commons explores the ramifications of many of the changes currently being proposed to Canada's political system with particular reference to their affect on prerogative power parliamentary privilege party discipline bicameralism and the role of the opposition
