Background: The impact of endovascular revascularization of the lower extremity arteries with atherectomy (AT) compared with percutaneous transluminal angioplasty (PTA) is still unclear. Therefore, the aim of the study was to compare long-term outcomes after percutaneous PTA and AT in patients requiring endovascular revascularization.

Methods and Results: This was a single-center, retrospective registry of obstructive and symptomatic PAD patients who underwent endovascular revascularization. PTA was performed in 215 patients, and AT in 204 (Silver Hawk, EV3, n=125; CSI 360°, n=66; Pathway Medical Technologies, n=13). There were no significant between-group differences in baseline characteristics except for increased CAD, dialysis and CLI prevalence in the PTA group. Following propensity score analysis 131 well-matched pairs were included in analysis. Bail-out stenting was more frequent in the reference group (PTA, 6.1% vs. AT, 0%; $P=0.004$). At 6- and 12-month follow-up there were no differences in TLR between the groups (PTA, 8.3% vs. AT, 5.3%; $P=0.47$; and PTA, 16.7% vs. AT, 13.7%; $P=0.73$, respectively). The difference was in favor of AT at 24-month follow-up (PTA, 29.0% vs. AT, 16.7%; $P=0.05$). No difference was observed in amputation rate (PTA, 0.7% vs. AT, 1.5%; $P=0.62$). On Kaplan-Meier analysis there were no significant differences between groups in time to TLR, amputation or death.

Conclusions: AT was associated with lower risk of TLR, and this should be confirmed in randomized controlled trials.

According to recent clinical practice and evidence, endovascular revascularization of the lower limb arteries has superseded surgical procedures.^{1,2} Regardless of advancement in endovascular technology, restenosis and the need for repeat revascularization are still challenging. Moreover, the mortality in peripheral artery disease (PAD), especially in critical limb ischemia (CLI), is high, fluctuating at around 20% at 6-month follow-up, and exceeding 50% within 5 years from diagnosis.^{3,4} These numbers increase in patients with coexisting symptomatic coronary artery disease (CAD). Additionally, CLI is associated with poor quality of life⁵ and high treatment costs.⁶ Nowadays, multiple therapies for PAD have emerged, including pharmacological regimens, endovascular and open surgery, drug-coated balloons (DCB), and stem cell therapy.⁷ On top of that, stenting has become popular, due to the reassuring early outcome. In contrast, in the femoropopliteal artery mechanical stress is high, thus implanted stents are exposed to the risk of stent fracture and malformation, increasing the rate of restenosis.^{8,9} In the below-the-knee (BTK) region, use of metal, balloon-expandable drug-eluting stents is more common than the self-expandable nitinol ones, because those stents are even more susceptible to fracture. Moreover, due to the characteristics of BTK lesions, in most cases multiple stents are needed.¹⁰ Therefore, atherectomy (AT), which removes the atherosclerotic plaque from the arterial wall, appears to be promising. This expectancy is linked to the fact that these devices cut out the plaque from the artery wall, thus significantly increasing lumen diameter and removing potential sources of inflammation, thus facilitating satisfactory outcome.¹¹

contributors have shaped this textbook to provide clinicians with a thorough guide that covers the procedural and periprocedural aspects of coronary peripheral and structural heart disease diagnostics and interventions. This comprehensive and highly illustrated textbook presents critical information for anyone active in the field of cardiovascular interventions, including practical suggestions on how to set up a cardiovascular catheterization laboratory, choose the right equipment, and minimize radiation exposure. A careful analysis of the general principles of percutaneous coronary interventions, the specific knowledge needed in different clinical scenarios, as well as the patient selection criteria for each invasive procedure, is provided in depth. Coverage of non-coronary interventions includes 13 chapters on peripheral vascular interventions, including carotid artery stenting, as well as newer procedures for intracranial stenosis treatment, septal defect repair, and left atrial appendage closure. An incorporation of emerging procedures in structural heart disease, such as percutaneous aortic valve replacement and mitral valve repair, that although not presently mainstream, will likely become an important domain of interventional cardiology. Given the importance of appropriate training and credentialing for clinicians, the textbook also includes current national guidelines and policies on the performance of the various procedures.
