Making Marriage Modern Christina Simmons, 2009-04-10 The nineteenth century middle class ideal of the married woman was of a chaste and diligent wife focused on being a loving mother with few needs or rights of her own The modern woman by contrast was partner to a new model of marriage one in which she and her husband formed a relationship based on greater sexual and psychological equality In Making Marriage Modern Christina Simmons narrates the development of this new companionate marriage ideal which took hold in the early twentieth century and prevailed in American society by the 1940s The first challenges to public reticence to discuss sexual relations between husbands and wives came from social hygiene reformers who advocated for a scientific but conservative sex education to combat prostitution and venereal disease A more radical group of feminists anarchists and bohemians opposed the Victorian model of marriage and even the institution of marriage Birth control advocates such as Emma Goldman and Margaret Sanger openly championed women's rights to acquire and use effective contraception The companionate marriage emerged from these efforts This marital ideal was characterized by greater emotional and sexuality intimacy for both men and women use of birth control to create smaller families and destigmatization of divorce in cases of failed unions Simmons examines what she calls the flapper marriage in which free spirited young wives enjoyed the early years of marriage postponing children and domesticity She looks at the feminist marriage in which women imagined greater equality between the sexes in domestic and paid work and sex And she explores the African American partnership marriage which often included wives employment and drew more heavily on the involvement of the community and extended family Finally she traces how these modern ideals of marriage were promoted in sexual advice literature and marriage manuals of the period Though male dominance persisted in companionate marriages Christina Simmons shows how they called for greater independence and satisfaction for women and a new female heterosexuality By raising women's expectations of marriage the companionate ideal also contained within it the seeds of second wave feminists demands for transforming the institution into one of true equality between the sexes

Marriage Discourses Jowan A. Mohammed, Frank

Jacob,2021-11-22 Marriage was historically not only a romantic ideal but a tool of exploitation of women in many regards Women were often considered commodities and marriage was far away from the romantic stereotypes people relate to it today While marriages served as diplomatic tools or means of political legitimization in the past the discourses about marital relationships changed and women expressed their demands more openly Discourses about marriage in history and literature naturally became more and more heated especially during the long 19th century when marriages were contested by social reformers or political radicals male and female alike The present volume provides a discussion of the role of marriage and the discourses about in different chronological and geographical contexts and shows which arguments played an important role for the demand for more equality in marital relationships It focuses on marriage discourses may they have been legal or rather socio political ones In addition the disputes about marriage in literary works of the 19th and 20th centuries are presented to complement the historical debates
