

Mike could think only of a big carnival wheel.

It was so attached to the revolving arm that it could be made to swing in closer to the center or out toward the end of the crane, thereby enabling the operator of the contraption to slow it down or speed it up according to how far away he chose to put it from the rotating center.

"This is a centrifuge, and the man to be tested will be strapped into the little enclosed seat. When the arm starts he will find himself moving around the room at the end of the long arm. Now all of you have seen a
