The Caregiving Dilemma Nancy Foner, 1994-06-02. Along with increasing life expectancy comes the knowledge that many Americans will one day enter nursing homes. Who are the people who will care for us or for our relatives? Nancy Foner provides a major study of institutional care that focuses on nursing aides, who are the backbone of American nursing homes. She examines the strains and paradoxes facing nursing aides, asked on the one hand to provide compassionate care and on the other to cope with the pressures of the workplace and the institution. Aides are expected to look after patients who are predominantly older women with kindness and consideration, but nursing home regulations and bureaucratic forces often hinder even the best efforts to offer consistently supportive care Positioned at the bottom of the nursing hierarchy aides must cope with the needs of frail dependent residents pressures from patients relatives and from their own families and demands of supervisors and coworkers Foner s detailed description and analysis of caregiving dilemmas based on intensive field research in a New York facility brings the perspective of the nursing aides to the fore This is a timely contribution to the study of work bureaucracy and the future of an aging American population
