Radio carbon: Calibration and Prehistory

Edited by Trevor Watkins

The technical complexities of C-14 dating can battle archaeologists.

This book attempts their rescue. It is by specialists for non-specialists.

The realisation that the production rate of C-14 in the atmosphere was not constant undermined the assumption that C-14 years could be equated with calendar years.

Correction by calibration with cross-dated tree-ring radio-carbon samples offers hope, but creates 'correction curves' of bewildering variety.

This book explains the issues clearly and simply, provides valuable comparative data, assesses the reliability of the methods, tells how to take a sample, and where to send it for dating.

Climate and Cultural Change in Prehistoric Europe and the Near East Peter F. Biehl, Olivier P. Nieuwenhuyse, 2016-11-23 The subject of climate change could hardly be more timely In Climate and Cultural Change in

Prehistoric Europe and the Near East an interdisciplinary group of contributors examine climate change through the lens of new archaeological and paleo environmental data over the course of more than 10 000 years from the Near East to Europe Key climatic and other events are contextualized with cultural changes and transitions for which the authors discuss when how and if changes in climate and environment caused people to adapt move or perish More than this publication of crucial archaeological and paleo environmental data however the volume seeks to understand the social political and economic significance of climate change as it was manifested in various ways around the Old World Contrary to perceptions of threatening global warming in our popular media and in contrast to grim images of collapse presented in some archaeological discussions of past climate change this book rejects outright societal collapse as a likely outcome Yet this does not keep the authors from considering climate change as a potential factor in explaining culture change by adopting a critical stance with regard to the long standing practice of equating synchronicity with causality and explicitly considering alternative explanations

The Drowning of a Cornish Prehistoric Landscape Andy M. Jones, Michael J. Allen, 2023-06-01 Between 2018 and 2019 Cornwall Archaeological Unit undertook two projects at Mount s Bay Penwith The first involved the excavation of a Bronze Age barrow and the second environmental auger core sampling in Marazion Marsh Both sites lie within an area of coastal hinterland which has been subject to incursions by rising sea levels Since the Mesolithic an area of approximately 1 kilometer in extent between the current shoreline and St Michael s Mount has been lost to gradually rising sea levels With current climate change this process is likely to occur at an increasing rate Given their proximity the opportunity was taken to draw the results from the two projects together along with all available existing environmental data from the area For the first time the results from all previous palaeoenvironmental projects in the Mount s Bay area have been brought together Evidence for coastal change and sea level rise is discussed and a model for the drowning landscape presented In addition to modeling the loss of land and describing the environment over time social responses including the wider context of the Bronze Age barrow and later Bronze Age metalwork deposition in the Mount s Bay environs are considered The effects of the gradual loss of land are discussed in terms of how change is perceived its effects on community resilience and the construction of social memory and narratives of place The volume presents the potential for nationally significant environmental data to survive which demonstrates the long term effects of climate change and rising sea levels and peoples responses to these over time

Modelling Human-Environment Interactions in and beyond Prehistoric Europe Samuel Seuru,Benjamin Albouy,2023-07-25 This book offers insight into the relationship between prehistoric and protohistoric human populations and the world around them It reconstructs key aspects of the palaeoenvironment from large scale drivers of environmental conditions such as climate to more regional variables such as vegetation cover and faunal communities The volume underscores how computational archaeology is leading the way in the study of past human environment interactions across spatial and chronological scales With the increased availability of high resolution climate models agent based modelling palaeoecological proxies and the mature use of Geographic Information System in ecological modelling archaeologists working in interdisciplinary settings are well positioned to explore the intersection of human systems and environmental affordances and constraints These methodological advancements provide a better understanding of the role humans played in past ecosystems both in terms of their impact upon the environment and in return the impact of environmental conditions on human systems They may also allow us to infer past ecological knowledge and land use patterns that are historically contingent rather than environmentally determined This volume gathers contributions that combine reconstructions of past environments and archeological data with a view to exploring their complex interactions at different scales and invites scholars from varying disciplines and backgrounds to present and compare different modelling approaches

The Oxford Handbook of the Prehistoric Arctic T. Max Friesen,Owen K. Mason,2016-08-05 The North American Arctic was one of the last regions on Earth to be settled by humans due to its extreme climate limited range of resources and remoteness from populated areas Despite these factors it holds a complex and lengthy history relating to Inuit I upiat Inuvialuit Yup ik and Aleut peoples and their ancestors The artifacts dwellings and food remains of these ancient peoples are remarkably well preserved due to cold temperatures and permafrost allowing archaeologists to reconstruct their lifeways with great accuracy Furthermore the combination of modern Elders traditional knowledge with the region s high resolution ethnographic record allows past peoples lives to be reconstructed to a level simply not possible elsewhere Combined these factors yield an archaeological record of global significance the Arctic provides ideal case studies relating to issues as diverse as the impacts of climate

Current Approaches to Tells in the Prehistoric Old World Antonio Blanco-González, Tobias L. Kienlin, 2020-11-30 Deeply stratified settlements are a distinctive site type featuring prominently in diverse later prehistoric landscapes of the Old World Their massive materiality has attracted the curiosity of lay people and archaeologists alike Nowadays a wide variety of archaeological projects are tracking the lifestyles and social practices that led to the building up of such superimposed artificial hills However prehistoric tell dwelling communities are too often approached from narrow local perspectives or discussed within strict time and culture specific debates There is a great potential to learn from such ubiquitous archaeological manifestations as the physical outcome of cross cutting dynamics and comparable underlying forces irrespective of time and space This volume tackles tells and tell like sites as a transversal phenomenon whose commonalities and divergences are poorly understood yet may benefit from cross cultural comparison Thus the book intends to assemble a representative range of ongoing theory and science based fieldwork projects targeting this kind of sites With the aim of encompassing a variety of social and material dynamics the volume s scope is diachronic from the Earliest Neolithic up to the Iron Age and covers a very large region from Iberia in Western Europe to Syria in the Middle East The core of the volume comprises a selection of the most remarkable contributions to the session with a similar title celebrated in the European Association of Archaeologists Annual Meeting held at Barcelona in 2018 In addition the book includes invited chapters to round out underrepresented areas and periods in the EAA session with relevant research programmes in the Old World To accomplish such a cross cultural course the book takes a case based approach with contributions disparate both in their theoretical foundations from household archaeology social agency and formation theory and their research strategies including geophysical survey microarchaeology and high resolution excavation and dating
