International Reflections on Approaches to Mental Health Social Work Malcolm Golightley,Gloria Kirwan,2018-04-19

Growing out of an interest in exploring the contemporary contexts and practices related to mental health social work across the world this book provides a range of insights into the social factors which contribute sometimes quite significantly to the emergence of mental health problems for individuals and even whole communities The range and scope of mental health social work is highlighted through the different accounts of therapeutic work advocacy support and rehabilitation But this collection goes further and also provides the reader with critical analyses of social work practice and social policies in certain contexts thus inviting the reader to a more reflective consideration of the value of mental health perspectives in social work in general Taken as a whole the collection suggests that social work engages with the field of mental health in diverse creative and very reflective ways yet is always focused on the needs and rights of those for whom problems with mental health can be personally challenging and often disempowering This book was originally published as a special issue of the Journal of Social Work Practice Scientific Canadian Mechanics' Magazine and Patent Office Record Canada. Official Gazette of the United States Patent Office United States. Patent Office,1960 Reflection-in-Motion Jaclyn Fiscus-Cannaday,2025-05-23 Reflection in Motion considers how reflective practice is embedded in daily course happenings centering the experiences of students and teachers in Minority Serving Institutions to amplify underrepresented viewpoints about how reflection works in the writing classroom Jaclyn Fiscus Cannaday examines how its availability is subject to teacher student power dynamics the literacies welcomed or not in the class the past and present pedagogies that students are engaging with and attending to and the interactions among humans materials and emotions within the rhetorical context She adopts an intersectional feminist perspective for an inclusive view of how practitioners name identify and practice reflection in the everyday moments of writing classrooms Fiscus Cannaday invokes a Black feminist qualitative research method that Venus Evans Winters calls a mosaic When researchers collect both traditional and nontraditional texts to create a full view of students and teachers interviews at three institutions a Hispanic Serving Institution a Historically Black College and University and an Asian American Native American Pacific Islander Serving Institution she finds that practitioners often build definitions from past experiences with reflection and then use those definitions as terministic screens to decide if an activity can be named identified and practiced as reflection These definitions hold different rhetorical effects reflection for introspection reflection for learning reflection for mindfulness and reflection for awareness Reflection is used for these different rhetorical effects but because classrooms so often focus on the Westernized view and its emphasis on growth reflection has the underused and undertheorized potential rhetorical effect of helping students investigate their identities and positionalities acknowledge deep rooted ideologies and consider new perspectives so they can better work across difference Reflection in Motion will inspire teachers and writing program administrators to listen to how students define and practice reflection and why thus making room for more capacious definitions of reflection and student centered practices of what reflection can do and be
