Ethnic Identities in Bernard Malamud's Fiction Martín Urdiales Shaw, 2000 The present study has been divided into five general chapters each of which is centred around a basic issue related to ethnic identities This central issue may be more or less specific largely depending on its nature and on the corpus it comprises for example chapter two which bears the general title the old country and the New World is naturally the most extensive because of the great scope of this theme and the number of works it involves two novels and a considerable number of stories including the very long Man in the Drawer By contrast the last chapter entitled Beyond Race into Myth Seeking the Liberation of the Self is logically the shortest because its focus is restricted to a particular function of ethnic identities metaphorically speaking in Malamud's fantastic works the novel God's Grace and one short story Similar proportions between length complexity of theme and corpus treated are maintained in the three central chapters which focus on ethnic aspects which are neither as general as chapter two nor as specific as chapter six

Lionel Trilling Daniel T. O'Hara, 1988 Daniel T O Hara reads the career of Trilling as a single completely comprehensive work of self fashioning The intention of such work says O Hara from the beginning and throughout Trilling s intellectual life was to create a self that when confronted with the great achievement of another mind was capable of imaginative sympathy and not solely resentful critique In order to reach that goal however Trilling had to adopt one of the conventional masks available to the intellectual in modern culture and adapt it to his needs and to those of his liberal time
