

"Let me tell you
of the place your mother came from,
of Atlantis, the city of King Poseidon, after whom the wave also named. And, much like your mother, her city was a thing of beauty, but also a place that bore sacrifice in its deeds and was shaped by them.

"I tell you this story now, for the tide is so high, underneath the stars, and on land, but cold to the stranger of the sea.

"No Atlantis, once
there were magic.

"The city was made by it, shaped by it.
Great warriors and warlocks and witches and warriors devised into its magical depths, and fashioned reality from mere thought.

Magic, Science, and Empire in Postcolonial Literature

Kathleen Renk, 2012-03-29 This book examines the ways in which contemporary British and British postcolonial writers in the after empire era draw connections between magic defined here as Renaissance Hermetic philosophy and science Writers such as Tom Stoppard Zadie Smith and Margaret Atwood critique both imperial science or science used in service to empire and what Renk calls imperical science a distortion of rational science which denies that reality is holistic and claims that nature can and should be conquered In warning of the dangers of imperical science these writers restore the connection between magic and science as they examine major shifts in scientific thinking across the centuries They reflect on the Copernican Revolution and the historic split between magic and science scrutinize Darwinism consider the relationship between Victorian science and pseudo science analyze twentieth century Uncertainty theories reject bio genetic engineering call for a new approach to science that reconnects science and art and ultimately endeavor to bring an end to the imperial age Overall these writers forge a new discourse that merges science with the arts and emphasizes a holistic philosophy a view shared by both Hermetic philosophy and recent scientific theories such as chaos or complexity theory Along with recent books that focus on the relationship between contemporary literature and science this work focuses on contemporary British literature s critique of science and the ways in which postcolonial literature addresses the relationship between magic science and empire

Science, Technology and Magic in The Witcher Kristine Larsen, 2023-02-02

As Andrzej Sapkowski was fleshing out his character Geralt of Rivia for a writing contest he did not set out to write a science textbook or even a work of science fiction However the world that Sapkowski created in his series The Witcher resulted in a valuable reflection of real world developments in science and technology As the Witcher books have been published across decades the sorcery in the series acts as an extension of the modern science it grows alongside This book explores the fascinating entanglement of science and magic that lies at the heart of Sapkowski's novel series and its widely popular video game and television adaptations This is the first English language book length treatment of magic and science in the Witcher universe These are examined through the lenses of politics religion history and mythology Sapkowski's richly detailed universe investigates the sociology of science and ponders some of the most pressing modern technological issues such as genetic engineering climate change weapons of mass destruction sexism speciesism and environmentalism Chapters explore the unsettling realization that the greatest monsters are frequently human and their heinous acts often involve the unwitting hand of science

Religion, Magic, and Science in Early Modern Europe and America Allison P. Coudert,2011-10-17 This fascinating study looks at how the seemingly incompatible forces of science magic and religion came together in the 15th 16th and 17th centuries to form the foundations of modern culture As Religion Magic and Science in Early Modern Europe and America makes clear the early modern period was one of stark contrasts witch burnings and the brilliant mathematical physics of Isaac Newton John Locke's plea for tolerance and the palpable lack of it the richness of intellectual and artistic life and the poverty of material existence for all but a tiny percentage of the population Yet for all the poverty insecurity and superstition the period produced a stunning galaxy of writers artists philosophers and scientists This book looks at the conditions that fomented the emergence of such outstanding talent innovation and invention in the period 1450 to 1800 It examines the interaction between religion magic and science during that time the impossibility of clearly differentiating between the three and the impact of these forces on the geniuses who laid the foundation for modern science and culture

Magic in Early Modern England Andrew Moore,2023-05-15 This book reconsiders the place of magic at the foundations of modernity Through careful close reading of plays spell books philosophical treatises and witch trial narratives Andrew Moore shows us that magic was ubiquitous in early modern England

Rather than a decline of magic this study traces a broad cultural fascination with supernatural power In the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries poets philosophers jurists and monarchs debated the reality and the morality of magic and by extension the limits of human power In this way early modern English writing about magic was closely related to the scientific and political philosophical writing from the period which was likewise reimagining humanity s relationship to nature Moore reads Thomas Hobbes s Leviathan alongside contemporary writing by the notorious witch hunters Matthew Hopkins and John Stearne He reminds us that Francis Bacon s scientific works were addressed to King James I whose own D monologie insists on the reality of witchcraft The fantastical science fiction of Margaret Cavendish he argues must be understood within a tradition that includes works like Christopher Marlowe s Doctor Faustus and the peculiar autobiography of criminal astrologer Simon Forman By considering these disparate works together Moore reveals the centrality of magic to the early modern project
