Gries, 2015-03-05 In Still Life with Rhetoric Laurie Gries forges connections among new materialism actor network theory and rhetoric to explore how images become rhetorically active in a digitally networked global environment Rather than study how an already materialized visual text functions within a specific context Gries investigates how images often circulate and transform across media genre and location at viral rates A four part case study of Shepard Fairey's now iconic Obama Hope image elucidates how images reassemble collective life as they actualize in different versions enter into various relations and spark a firework of activity across the globe While intent on tracking the rhetorical life of a single multiple image Still Life with Rhetoric is most concerned with studying rhetoric in motion To account for an image's widespread circulation and emergent activities Gries introduces iconographic tracking a digital research method for tracing an image's divergent rhetorical becomings Yet Gries also articulates a dynamic set of theoretical principles for studying rhetoric as a distributed generative and unforeseeable event that is applicable beyond the study of visual rhetoric With an eye toward futurity the strands of time beyond a thing's initial moment of production and delivery Still Life with Rhetoric intends to be taken up by those interested in visual rhetoric research methods and theory     Catalog of Copyright Entries Library of Congress. Marketplace 1840s-1940s David Carter, Roger Osborne, 2018-07-02 Australian Books and Authors in the American Marketplace 1840s 1940s explores how Australian writers and their works were present in the United States before the mid twentieth century to a much greater degree than previously acknowledged Drawing on fresh archival research and combining the approaches of literary criticism print culture studies and book history David Carter and Roger Osborne demonstrate that Australian writing was transnational long before the contemporary period In mapping Australian literature s connections to British and US markets their research challenges established understandings of national imperial and world literatures Carter and Osborne examine how Australian authors editors and publishers engaged productively with their American counterparts and how American readers and reviewers responded to Australian works They consider the role played by British publishers and agents in taking Australian writing to America and how the international circulation of new literary genres created new opportunities for novelists to move between markets Some of these writers such as Christina Stead and Patrick White remain household names others who once enjoyed international fame such as Dale Collins and Alice Grant Rosman have been largely forgotten The story of their books in America reveals how culture commerce and copyright law interacted to create both opportunities and obstacles for Australian writers The Annual American Catalogue ,1897

The Nineteenth Century Periodical Press and the Development of Detective Fiction Samuel Saunders, 2021-05-11 This book re imagines nineteenth century detective fiction as a literary genre that was connected to and nurtured by contemporary periodical journalism Whilst detective fiction is almost universally accepted to have originated in the nineteenth century a variety of widely accepted scholarly narratives of the genre s evolution neglect to connect it with the development of a free press The volume traces how police officers detectives criminals and the criminal justice system were discussed in the pages of a variety of magazines and journals and argues that this affected how the wider nineteenth century society perceived organised law enforcement and detection This in turn helped to shape detective fiction into the genre that we recognise today The book also explores how periodicals and newspapers contained forgotten non canonical examples of detective fiction and that these texts can help complicate the narrative of the genre s evolution across the mid to late nineteenth century
