High-Redshift Galaxies Immo Appenzeller, 2009-06-17 The high redshift galaxies became a distinct research field during the final decade of the 20th century At that time the Lyman break technique made it possible to identify significant samples of such objects and the new generation of 8 to 10 m telescopes resulted in the first good spectroscopic data Today the high redshift galaxies have developed into one of the important topics of astrophysics accounting for about 5-10% of the publications in the major scientific journals devoted to astronomy Because high redshift galaxies is a rapidly developing field and since new results are published constantly writing a book on this topic is challenging On the other hand in view of the large amount of individual results now in the literature and in view of the still growing interest in this topic it appears worthwhile to summarize and evaluate the available data and to provide an introduction for those who wish to enter this field or who for various reasons might be interested in its results The end of the first decade of the 21st century appears to be a good point in time to attempt such a summary The current generation of ground based 8 to 10 m optical telescopes the Hubble Space Telescope and the most important large radio telescopes have by now been in operation since about one or two decades Although these instruments will continue to produce important scientific results for some time to come many of the initial programs exploiting their unique new possibilities have been completed

More Things in the Heavens Michael Werner, Peter Eisenhardt, 2019-06-25 A sweeping tour of the infrared universe as seen through the eyes of NASA's Spitzer Space Telescope. Astronomers have been studying the heavens for thousands of years but until recently much of the cosmos has been invisible to the human eye. Launched in 2003, the Spitzer Space Telescope has brought the infrared universe into focus as never before. Michael Werner and Peter Eisenhardt are among the scientists who worked for decades to bring this historic mission to life. Here is their inside story of how Spitzer continues to carry out cutting edge infrared astronomy to help answer fundamental questions that have intrigued humankind since time immemorial: Where did we come from? How did the universe evolve? Are we alone? In this panoramic book, Werner and Eisenhardt take readers on a breathtaking guided tour of the cosmos in the infrared, beginning in our solar system and venturing ever outward toward the distant origins of the expanding universe. They explain how astronomers use the infrared to observe celestial bodies that are too cold or too far away for their light to be seen by the eye, to conduct deep surveys of galaxies as they appeared at the dawn of time, and to peer through dense cosmic clouds that obscure major events in the life cycles of planets, stars, and galaxies. Featuring many of Spitzer's spectacular images, More Things in the Heavens provides a thrilling look at how infrared astronomy is aiding the search for exoplanets and extraterrestrial life and transforming our understanding of the history and evolution of our universe.
