

REFLECTIONS ON COMMUNITY STUDIES

Manuel Calvino

Universidad de La Habana
Havana, Cuba

In this article, the author reflects on some of the limitations of the field of Community Psychology. The critical reflections offered focus on: (a) the sterile quality of the field's alternatives between offering paternalistic or utopian perspectives on how community processes operate; (b) the field's reliance on scientific objectivity and neutrality; (c) the field's ignorance of those who live in the community and the consequent presentation of "disembodied" communities; (d) the field's ahistorical and decontextualized treatment of community phenomena; and (e) the paradoxical nature of providing help to a community. © 1998 John Wiley & Sons, Inc.

As reflected in its title, my goal in writing this article is to share with my colleagues in community psychology my reflections about the field and the challenges that it confronts. In many respects, our field has taken upon itself a task considered by many as fruitless, if not impossible. That task, however, becomes increasingly important as the needs of those residing in many communities become ever more urgent. I understand that these reflections do not represent either popular or widely held views. Hopefully, those interested in the economic, sociopolitical, and psychological reality of what are defined as communities in Latin America will appreciate the salience of my comments regarding how we apply our expertise in interventions, in theory, and in research methods.

Readers will note that I have not focused my comments on my country, Cuba. I base this decision on several factors. First, I believe community psychology in Cuba has (to paraphrase the old saying) a long past but a short history. In stating this, I am distinguishing clearly between what the field can be, and what it has been, in Cuba. In some respects, the Cuban Revolution represented a community effort, that is, a sociopolitical on Community Studies [by] Arthur J. Vidich, Joseph Bensman [and] Maurice R. Stein Arthur J. Vidich, 1971 A Quarter Century of Community Psychology Tracey A. Revenson, Anthony R. D'Augelli, Sabine E. French, Diane Hughes, David E. Livert, Edward Seidman, Marybeth Shinn, Hirokazu Yoshikawa, 2011-06-27 This work contains original research from the first 25 years of the American Journal of Community Psychology selected to reflect community psychology's rich tradition of theory empirical research action and innovative methods This volume will be of interest to community mental health workers social science and social work researchers health care professionals policymakers and educators in the fields of community and preventative psychology Where Music Helps: Community Music Therapy in Action and Reflection Brynjulf Stige, 2017-07-05 This book explores how people may use music in ways that are helpful for them especially in relation to a sense of wellbeing belonging and participation The central premise for the study is that help is not a decontextualized effect that music produces The book contributes to the current discourse on music culture and society and it is developed in dialogue with related areas of study such as music sociology ethnomusicology community psychology and health promotion Where Music Helps describes the emerging movement that has been labelled Community Music Therapy and it presents ethnographically informed case studies of eight music projects localized in England Israel Norway and South Africa The various chapters of the book portray music's help in action within a broad range of contexts with individuals groups and communities all of whom have been challenged by illness or disability social and cultural disadvantage or injustice Music and musicing has helped these people find their voice literally and metaphorically to be welcomed and to welcome to be accepted and to accept to be together in different and better ways to project alternative messages about themselves or their community and to connect with others beyond their immediate environment The overriding theme that is explored is how music comes to afford things in concert with its environments which may suggest a way of accounting for the role of music in music therapy without reducing music to a secondary role in relation to the therapeutic that is being just a symbol of psychological states a stimulus or a text reflecting socio cultural content Reflection on Community Studies Arthur J. Vidich, Joseph Bensman, 1964 The Student Companion to Community-Engaged Learning David M. Donahue, Star Plaxton-Moore, 2023-07-03 This compact accessibly written text prepares students for their experience of community based learning It is designed for students to read and reflect on independently or to foster discussion in class on their motivations and dispositions toward community engagement and service learning It prepares students to work with diverse individuals groups and organizations that may be outside their prior experience Faculty can use the book as a tool to deepen the educational experience of the course and enrich community engagement This text is a guide to what's involved in community engaged learning from understanding the pervasiveness of social economic and environmental problems to learning about how individuals and organizations in communities work to overcome them Students will discover through a process of reflection how service connects to personal development and the content of their courses builds their ability to engage with people different from themselves and develops new life skills all in the context of working with communities to overcome systemic injustice Critical questions woven into each chapter prompt students to reflect on ideas and perspectives about social justice community development and their role in fostering them The book concludes with case studies of students who have experienced the transformative power of community engaged learning The stories illustrate common themes inherent in the student experience including listening to understand challenging stereotypes learning the nature of their role and seeing the world through a new lens A special feature of this book is the embedded QR codes that provide access as students read the text to online resources and original and public videos that explore particular themes or perspectives more deeply The authors also include text directed to faculty to provide ideas about framing their community engaged course and integrating the book

Feminist Community Research Gillian Creese, Wendy Frisby, 2011-10-20 Feminist community research is a collaborative policy oriented methodology that holds the promise of empowering the disadvantaged and building a more just society But in the absence of critical analysis and the responsible use of power this approach can lead to naive or even harmful practices Grounded as they are in fieldwork these interdisciplinary case studies acknowledge the real methodological and ethical issues that researchers can encounter as they negotiate contested research relationships The authors discuss the strategies successful and unsuccessful that they have employed to overcome these challenges The authors collective experiences working with diverse groups from immigrant and Aboriginal women in Vancouver to poverty reduction practitioners in Vietnam reveal that truly equitable research projects require that we question core concepts and address crucial issues such as the promises and limits of reflexivity the politics of place time and resources ethical dilemmas and emotional responses and the way issues of social justice policy and social change are embedded in research

Community Research for Participation Lisa Goodson, Jenny Phillimore, 2012 Presenting the latest thinking in the field this book bridges a major gap in knowledge by considering both theoretical and practical issues relating to community research methodologies

Handbook of Ethnography Paul Atkinson, 2001-03-22 This handbook provides a critical guide to the past present and future of ethnography

Methodological Challenges and New Approaches to Research in International Development L. Service-Learning and Writing: Paving the Way for Literacy(ies) through Community Engagement Isabel Baca, 2012-11-20 Service learning and Writing Paving the Way for Literacy ies through Community Engagement discusses service learning as a teaching and learning method and its integration with writing The various authors from different disciplines and institutions present service learning as a means of having students practice writing in real world settings and they show how relationship building and partnerships between higher education and diverse communities produce benefits for all involved the students faculty administrators and the communities themselves This volume demonstrates how writing instruction and or writing practice can complement community engagement and outreach at local national and international contexts Through different cross cultural contexts and academic disciplines the various authors explore reflection assessment internalization diversity and multiple literacies and their importance when integrating service learning in higher education and community literacy

Facilitating Community Research for Social Change Casey Burkholder, Funké Aladejebi, Joshua Schwab-Cartas, 2022-03-31 Facilitating Community Research for Social Change asks what does ethical research facilitation look like in projects that seek to move toward social change How can scholars weave political and social justice through multiple levels of the research process This edited collection presents chapters that investigate research facilitation in ways that specifically attempt to disrupt and challenge anti Indigenous and anti Black racism ableism homophobia transphobia patriarchy and sexism to work toward social change It also explores what it means to develop facilitation practices across multiple contexts and research settings including specific facilitation methods considered by researchers working with visual and community based methods with Black Indigenous and racialized communities The complexities of how scholars negotiate decisions within their research with people and communities have an effect not only on how researchers construct their participants and communities but also on the overall purpose of projects the ways their projects are shared and disseminated and what is learned in the doing of facilitation This book will be of great interest to both emerging and established researchers working within the social sciences It specifically attends to diverse fields within the social sciences that include health media studies environmental studies social work sociology education participatory visual research methodologies as well as the evolving field of digital humanities

Inside the Whale Colin Bell, S. Encel, 2016-06-06 Inside the Whale Ten Personal Accounts of Social Research reflects on the preoccupations of social research More specifically this book challenges the ways in which social research is normally written up published and taught It shows that social research is a social and political activity rather than a set of techniques to be applied to the world out there It thus places greater emphasis on social and political concerns over techniques This book consists of 10 chapters and begins by explaining the metaphor of the whale coined by Henry Miller to denote withdrawal from society and used by George Orwell to imply that the whale is society and that we should spy out the interior It then considers the nature of science and sociology as well as the fundamental nature of society The following chapters explore the issues raised by power force and violence proposed reforms for some housing and banking processes in Australia social research consultancies in the 1970s research on women academics and postgraduate research Other chapters describe the ethos and the milieux of social research including a fieldwork on Australian aborigines This monograph will be of interest to sociologists social scientists and social researchers
