

Learning environments that facilitate reflection on language learning

Jo Mynard

In this paper, I describe a university course designed to facilitate awareness of the language learning process through the examination and adoption of various technology-based language learning tools (TULTs¹). I examine how three overlapping and complementary learning environments were used to facilitate the course and suggest that this arrangement of learning environments promotes reflection on language learning. The "Computer Assisted Language Learning" course was designed for third year university students majoring in English. The course was not a content-based course, but instead designed for language learners in order to (1) raise students' awareness of some TULTs, and (2) to support students in critically evaluating their own language learning needs and selecting appropriate strategies and tools. Although data were not systematically analyzed, there was evidence that the learning environments provided an effective opportunity for students to reflect on the language learning process. In this article I suggest that there are some benefits of using a combination of learning environments and call for further research investigating levels of reflection using the environments.

Appropriate use of CALL

The Internet offers a large number of resources for language learners and has great potential for language learning and immersion opportunities outside of scheduled class time. Due to the range of the material freely available online, learners have a range of websites and other TULTs at their disposal that could be of interest and ideal for meeting their language-learning needs. However, due to the amount of

Reflections on Language Noam Chomsky, 1975 Noam Chomsky's work in linguistics has revolutionized our understanding of language In these remarkable nontechnical Reflections Chomsky considers the point and purpose of studying language and explores some of the more general intellectual implications that result from the study of linguistics The questions he considers are the classical ones From Plato to the present time philosophers have been baffled and intrigued by how human beings with their limited and personal experience achieve such rich systems of knowledge beliefs and values systems that guide their actions and their interpretations of experience In answer to this fundamental question Chomsky argues that the growth of language is analogous to the development of a bodily organ and is in large measure predetermined by genetic factors Throughout these Reflections Chomsky offers incisive analyses of the controversies raging today among psychologists philosophers and linguists over the acquisition of cognitive structures the way language interacts with other mental organs and the way cognitive structures enter into and guide human activity He explores the social and intellectual factors that have led to the dominance of certain ways of thinking and asks why the study of mind and behavior has so often followed a path remote from the general approach of the natural sciences In examining some of the implications of recent work he suggests that the conception of man as totally malleable not only is false but also serves naturally as a support for reactionary social doctrines Publisher

Task-Based Language Teaching Rod Ellis, 2018-06-18 Task based language teaching is now a well established pedagogic approach but problematic issues remain such as whether it is appropriate for all learners and in all instructional contexts This book draws on the author's experience of working with teachers together with his knowledge of relevant research and theory to examine the key issues It proposes flexible ways in which tasks can be designed and implemented in the language classroom to address the problems that teachers often face with task based language teaching It will appeal to researchers and teachers who are interested in task based language teaching and the practical and theoretical issues involved It will also be of interest to students and researchers working in the areas of applied linguistics TESOL and second language acquisition

Promoting Reflection on Language Learning Neil Curry, Phoebe Lyon, Jo Mynard, 2023-09-12 This book brings together a wide range of studies practical applications and reflective accounts written by academics working at a university in Japan to present a cohesive overview of their collaborative efforts to promote learner reflection within their institution The book contributes to a shift in language education towards promoting learner responsibility and ownership of their learning through developing a deeper sense of awareness of and motivation for the learning process It makes a convincing case for showing that not only is promoting reflection possible but it can also be effectively integrated into language learning activities with significant benefits to the learners The chapters are highly practical for researchers and practitioners with the research chapters containing instruments which make them ideal for replication studies The text includes a wealth of practical tools and activities for practitioners who will be able to experience first hand how to facilitate student success and increase satisfaction

Reflections on Multiliterate Lives Diane Dewhurst Belcher, Ulla Connor, 2001 Reflection on Multiliterate Lives is a collection of personal accounts in narrative and interview format of the formative literacy experiences of highly successful second language users all of who are professional academics Representing fourteen countries in origin the contributors well known specialists in language teaching as well as a variety of other fields in the social and physical sciences recount in their own words past and present struggles and successes as learners of language and of much else

Pedagogical Reflections On Learning Languages In Instructed Settings Maria Noelia Ruiz-Madrid, Esther Usó-Juan, 2009-03-26 Pedagogical Reflections on Learning Languages in Instructed Settings is intended to provide the latest pedagogical reflections that derive from research in a variety of key areas within the discipline of language learning Thus this volume aims at helping practising language teachers to update their teaching methodology The book has fifteen chapters that are grouped around five sections The first section of the book includes three chapters which outline past approaches to language learning and highlight advances in our understanding of how languages are likely to be learned and taught These three chapters provide the theoretical grounding for the rest of the volume by discussing outstanding concepts in the language learning field namely those of eclecticism Chapter 1 communication Chapter 2 and learner autonomy Chapter 3 The second section of the book contains three chapters which explore new directions in the field that have recently caught the attention of language researchers and practitioners namely the Information and Communication Technology ICT in language learning Chapter 4 the use of language corpora Chapter 5 and finally the use of the portfolio as a new assessment tool responding to new pedagogical demands Chapter 6 The third section of the book consists of three chapters which discuss the role of learners individual variables such as affect Chapter 7 learning styles Chapter 8 and learning strategies Chapter 9 crucial for understanding the nature of language learning The fourth section of the book has five chapters and provides insights into understanding the nature of the four language skills that is to say listening Chapter 10 speaking Chapter 11 reading Chapter 12 and writing Chapter 13 This section also addresses the issue of assessment with the aim of increasing awareness on the duality teaching assessing and its pedagogical dimension Chapter 14 The book concludes with the fifth section which includes a single chapter that pulls all aforementioned topics together and highlights connections to a student centred approach which involves a reformulation of language teachers teaching practices Chapter 15

Learning and Using Languages in Ethnographic Research Robert Gibb, Annabel Tremlett, Julien Danero Iglesias, 2019-10-11 Learning and Using Languages in Ethnographic Research breaks the silence that still surrounds learning a language for ethnographic research and in the process demystifies some of the multilingual aspects of contemporary ethnographic work It does this by offering a set of engaging and accessible accounts of language learning and use written by ethnographers who are at different stages of their academic career A key theme is how researchers experiences of learning and using other languages in fieldwork contexts relate to wider structures of power hierarchy and inequality The volume aims to promote a wider debate among researchers about how they themselves learn and use different languages in their work and to help future fieldworkers make more informed choices when carrying out ethnographic research using other languages
