A stack of several sticky notes in shades of yellow, light green, and orange is piled on a light-colored, textured surface. The topmost sticky note is a vibrant lime green and features the question "WHO ARE YOU?" written in a bold, black, hand-drawn font. The text is arranged in three lines: "WHO" on the first, "ARE" on the second, and "YOU?" on the third. The sticky notes are slightly offset from each other, creating a layered effect.

Finding Identity Through Directing Soseh Yekanians, 2020-05-10 Finding Identity through Directing is a practice led autoethnographical monograph that provides an in depth exploration into the field of theatre directing and an individual's endless creative pursuit for belonging The book specifically examines how a culturally displaced individual may find a sense of identity through their directing and addresses the internal struggles of belonging acceptance and Self that are often experienced by those who have confronted cultural unhoming The first half of the story scrutinises Dr Yekanians own identity as an Iranian born Armenian Australian and how she struggled with belonging growing up in a world that for the most part was unaccepting of her differences The second half looks at how theatre directing aided her re discovery of Self While evidence shows that within the past decade there has been a growing interest in the vocation of theatre directing embarking on a career within this field while exciting can often be a daunting and experimental vocation Finding Identity through Directing questions this conundrum and specifically asks in a competitive artistic profession that is rapidly developing what attracts an individual to the authoritative role of the director and what are the underlying motivations of this attraction By uncovering that there is more to the role of the director than the mere finality of a production we can observe that the theatre is a promising setting for cultural exchanges in dialogue and for personal development Theatre directing as the vehicle for these expansions and progressions of self can potentially address the internal struggles of identity often experienced by those who in some form have encountered cultural displacement

Identity and Capitalism Marie Moran, 2014-11-13 This is a splendid book that dispels myths about identity and presents a cultural materialist case for the study of such keywords and their preoccupations under the hegemony of neoliberal capitalism Professor Jim McGuigan Loughborough University Identity particularly as it is elaborated in the associated categories of personal and social identity is a relatively novel concept in western thought politics and culture The explosion of interest in the notion of identity across popular political and academic domains of practice since the 1960s does not represent the simple popularisation of an older term as is widely assumed but rather the invention of an idea Identity and Capitalism explores the emergence and evolution of the idea of identity in the cultural political and social contexts of contemporary capitalist societies Against the common supposition that identity always mattered this book shows that what we now think of routinely as personal identity actually only emerged with the explosion of consumption in the late twentieth century It also makes the case that what we now think of as different social and political identities only came to be framed as such with the emergence of identity politics and new social movements in the political landscapes of capitalist societies in the 60s and 70s Marie Moran provides an important new exploration of the articulation of the idea of identity to the social logic of capitalism from the organised capitalism of the mid twentieth century up to and including the neoliberal capitalism that prevails today Drawing on the work of Raymond Williams the cultural materialist approach developed here

provides an original means of addressing the political debates about the value of identity in contemporary capitalist societies
