Paleonutrition Method And Theory In Prehistoric Foodways:

Paleonutrition Elizabeth S. Wing, Antoinette B. Brown, 1979 Non Aboriginal material Archaeological Method and Theory Linda Ellis, 2003-12-16 This Encyclopedia brings together the most recent scientific information on a collection of subjects that are too often and inconveniently treated in separate publications It provides a survey of archaeological method and theory as well as the application of physical and biological sciences in archaeological research Every aspect of archaeological work is represented from the discovery process to the ultimate disposition of materials Thus the reader will find entries on subject matter covering disciplinary theory legislation affecting the work of archaeologists pre excavation surveying excavation methodology on site conservation techniques post excavation analysis The rapid evolution of analytical technology is often superficially treated or not covered at all in textbooks or other commonly available sources Here the latest refinements in techniques such as radiometric dating stable isotopic analysis and the PCR technique of DNA analysis are presented clearly and authoritatively The discussion of these techniques is amplified by including results of the work of professionals conducting interdisciplinary research and by covering the methodological enhancements provided by the physical and natural sciences Cultural property legislation regardless of its country of origin has affected how archaeologists conduct their work This encyclopedia covers all major U S legislation developed for the protection of cultural property including the recent Native American Graves Protection and Repatriation Act and offers a substantial article on worldwide legislation concerning the reburial of human remains and its effects on the present and future practice of archaeology Without some sort of conservation program at the point of excavation valuable materials may be inadvertently contaminated or destroyed Many simple and low cost techniques to promote both sample integrity and long term preservation for major classes of materials are described in this volume Traditional treatments of method and theory usually focus on prehistoric periods and are limited in their geographic range This volume includes discussions based on various historical periods on different continents as reflected in entries such as Historical Archaeology Industrial Archaeology Medieval Archaeology and Classical Archaeology Paleonutrition Mark Q. Sutton, Kristin D. Sobolik, Jill K. Gardner, 2010-04-15 Paleonutrition is the analysis of prehistoric human diets and the interpretation of dietary intake in relation to health and nutrition As a field of study it addresses prehistoric diets in order to determine the biological and cultural implications for individuals as well as for entire populations placing archaeological interpretations into an anthropological context Throughout history and long before written records human culture has been constantly in flux The study of paleonutrition provides valuable insights into shifts and changes in human history whatever their causes This is the most comprehensive and up to date book on the topic Intended for students and professionals it describes the nature of paleonutrition studies reviews the history of paleonutrition research discusses methodological issues in the reconstruction of prehistoric diets presents theoretical frameworks frequently used in paleonutrition research and showcases examples in which paleonutritional analyses have been successfully conducted on prehistoric individuals groups and populations It offers an integrative approach to understanding state of the art anthropological dietary health and nutritional assessments The most recent and innovative methods used to reconstruct prehistoric diets are discussed along with the major ways in which paleonutrition data are recovered analyzed and interpreted Paleonutrition includes five contemporary case studies that provide useful models of how to conduct paleonutrition research Topics range from ancient diets in medieval Nubia to children s health in the prehistoric American Southwest to honey use by an ethnographic group of East African foragers As well as providing interesting examples of applying paleonutrition techniques these case studies illustrate the mutually beneficial linkages between ethnography and archaeology
