John Hutt,Stephen Tyler,Corinne Hutt,Helen Christopherson,2022-11-21 Originally published in 1989 Play Exploration and Learning was a valuable contribution to the evaluation of nursery practice in Britain at the time this natural history of the activities of children and caring adults presents a comparative study of four types of provision for the under fives nursery schools nursery classes playgroups and day nurseries All four types of provision are seen as happy busy caring environments but they vary greatly in terms of staffing levels training and material provision The authors look at the play of three to five year old children and the activities of the adults who care for them They examine in detail children s choices of materials and their use of them with special attention given to the way language is used by both children and adults during play They also describe adults expectations of the various provisions and the values of the activities pursued in them Of special interest is the emphasis placed by adults upon fantasy play and the often large discrepancy between expectation and practice Also covered are the difference in the play activities of part time and full time nursery school children and the transition from pre school to first school The book will still be of historical interest to pre school practitioners to developmental psychologists and to educational administrators     The Child's Curriculum Colwyn Trevarthen,Jonathan Delafield-Butt,Aline-Wendy Dunlop,2018-08-30 All children are born with emotional talent But if left untended those talents can wane during the first five years of life Children are sensitive and social beings from birth exhibiting an innate enthusiasm for communication that must be satisfied for healthy development If their feelings agency and motivations are met with affection if they are respected and nurtured then children will respond creatively and that inherent desire for companionship will flourish However with the recent changes in political and educational systems early years education has seen a decline in focus on the emotional wellbeing of children and the development of their creativity Those systems need to adapt if educators are to bring out the best in our future generations By nurturing creativity and emotional wellbeing in the first five years of life long term social benefits can be wrought The book focusses on children s readiness for learning It addresses the natural joy explicit in children s early conversations and engagement with music and their development through play with both adults and other children This kind of education allows children to develop their bodies and skills accept and understand their feelings build relationships and progress both their imagination and their problem solving skills In this way play with others drives development With contributors from the fields of psychological educational and political spheres this book will be of interest to anyone concerned for the future of our children     Practical Home Economics ,1929 The Sept issue contains the annual Teaching aids section     The Primary School Annie Egerton Moore,1925     Tests in Print Linda L.
