What constitutes a data practice and how do contemporary digital media technologies reconfigure our understanding of practices in general Autonomously acting media distributed digital infrastructures and sensor based media environments challenge the conditions of accounting for data practices both theoretically and empirically Which forms of cooperation are constituted in and by data practices And how are human and nonhuman agencies distributed and interrelated in data saturated environments The volume collects theoretical empirical and historiographical contributions from a range of international scholars to shed light on the current shift from media to data practices

Journeys Into Palliative Care Christina Mason, 2002 The combined practice area of the contributors to this book include social work psychotherapy sociology counselling psychology creative writing nursing and medicine Several of the authors have multiple professions and have come to palliative care later in their careers Indeed the combined skill of this group is impressive Each chapter is unique and each story worthy in its own right The commonalities are remarkable also I recommend it to all palliative care professionals when feeling a little jaded about what we are doing and being swept along with the winds of changing technology and evidenced based practice and to other health care workers who feel an inclination to bring a little humanity to their care

Omega Vol 51 1 77 86 2005 This book offers unique way of looking at caring for palliative parents by using the influence of the self It also offers an opportunity for reflection how our experiences can enrich the experience of patient s faced with the prospect of dying Professionals who enjoy reading stories will thoroughly enjoy this book

International Journal of Palliative Nursing In a way it is surprising that palliative care has not produced more books like this collections in which those engaged in the daily work of caring for dying and bereaved people share something of their motivations for entering this particular world their experiences along the way and their reasons for staying in or quitting it Christina Mason was right to embark on this project She has edited a book that deserves to be widely read

Palliative Medicine 2003 This is a delightful book Although its focus is on professionals working in specialist palliative care it would be useful for any practitioner wanting to learn more about reflective practice or their motivations for caring

Journal of Community Nursing This rich collection of accounts explores the personal and professional experiences of palliative care workers Contributors from a variety of disciplines associated with care at the end of life among them social workers a nurse a doctor a counselling psychologist an academic researcher a psychotherapist and a creative writing therapist explain how and why they came to work in palliative care what they bring to the work and the ways in which it has enriched their own lives Including descriptive examples of their work with clients and families they discuss the spiritual needs of patients how to manage personal boundaries and power relations the use of narrative and story telling in care work and the impact of working with people who are very ill and grieving on every day life This thoughtful and positive book presents a variety of experience based perspectives on working in palliative care Emphasising the use of self and the importance of reflective practice in professional work this book will be of relevance to all professionals in medical and social care who want to gain a deeper understanding of their work and of the motivation underlying it Life After Magnet Memories - The Return of the Secret Series: 1988-1994 Nick Goodman,Jo Bunsell,Paul Chandler,2019-07-29 The Magnet Editor the sci fi adventure series known only to a select few was over But it had an afterlife Picking up from where The Magnet Editor left off Life After was the all new series that took the space and time escapades of Cabin Release all round adventurer and scientific journalist to the next level The Magnet Editor writing team of Nick Goodman and Jo Bunsell return joined by prolific poet Paul Chandler Relocating from Mexico to the leafy Sussex village of Handlehead Cabin now without his super powers reluctantly takes charge of Base Security and finds it tough at the top He is plunged into new perilous and challenging adventures Accompanied by friends old and new he faces the darkest terrors and everything from his marriage to the future of the universe is at stake Venture deep into the unknown with Life After Magnet Memories the complete guide to this sequel series
