Crossing Boundaries Giuseppina Marsico,Koji Komatsu,Antonio Iannaccone,2013-07-01 This book brings in the focus on the borders between different contexts that need to be crossed in the process of education Despite the considerable efforts of various groups of researchers all over the World it does not seem that traditional educational psychology has succeeded in illuminating the complex issues involved in the schoolfamily relationship From a methodological perspective there is no satisfactory explanation of the connection between representations and actual practice in educational contexts Crossing Boundaries is an invitation to cultural psychology of educational processes to overcome the limits of existing educational psychology Eemphasizing social locomotion and the dynamic processes the book try to capture the ambiguous richness of the transit from one context to another of the symbolic perspective that accompanies the dialogue between family and school of practices regulating the interstitial space between these different social systems How family and school fill occupy circulate avoid or strategically use this space in between What discourses and practices saturate this Border Zone and or cross from one side to the other Crossing Boundaries gathers contributions with the clear aim of documenting and analysing what happens at points of contact between family culture and scholastic educational culture from the perspective of everyday life This book is in itself an attempt to cross the border between the theorizing on the borders and how the outside world and the others are perceived from a certain point of view and the practices that characterize the school home interaction

Space for Active Learning is a collection that stands alone and gets to the heart of what we mean by learning and teaching. Each contribution reminded me of how much I miss being in the classroom and how much we're missing in current so-called school reform discourse. Keep this book handy. A chapter at a time will restore some needed sanity about what's important.

Deborah Meier, author and education activist. This book is a moving and powerful collection of teachers' work that holds the possibility of inspiring and changing new teachers' practice.

Kathy Schultz, Dean and Professor, School of Education, Mills College. This book will add significantly to the expanding and important literature about The Prospect Processes, which were developed over many years at the Prospect School and Center in Vermont. The chapters, all by experienced educators, profit from the back and forth between inquiry and stories of classroom life, each informing the other.

Brenda S. Engel, associate professor, retired, Lesley University. Democracy & Education, 1999. Journal of Thought, 2004. Boletín Internacional de Bibliografía Sobre Educación, 1998. Those Who Dared, Carl Glickman, 2009. For decades, practically every major initiative in American education, from top-down standards to the testing movement, has moved decision-making farther away from the school. Fighting against this trend throughout their careers, Deborah Meier, John Goodlad, James Comer, Ted Sizer, and Henry Levin have worked to give our schools back the ability to educate students in the broadest and richest traditions of activity, inquiry, and problem-solving. Now these visionary educators have joined together to share personal stories of the challenges and triumphs they faced and their ideas of what education can and must be for every student. Serving as an inspirational call to action for those seeking to be more involved in the urgent and continuing efforts to restore America's public schools, this book brings together the experiences and insights of greatly influential and progressive educational leaders of the past half century, and they are still working today. Ranges from highly personal to imminently practical to passionately political, with each writer offering a unique perspective on what it takes to sustain major school change. Recounts the many instances when the authors thought beyond the conventional boundaries of educational practice to find innovative solutions in a number of critical areas, including developing more effective curriculum and assessment, expanding the benefits of gifted education to every child, strengthening school-community partnerships, and addressing the specific needs of small schools and learning communities.
