The Entomologist's Monthly Magazine ,2001    Insect Biodiversity Robert G. Foottit,Peter H. Adler,2009-03-03 Insect Biodiversity Science and Society brings together leading scientific experts to assess the impact insects have on humankind and the earth's fragile ecosystems. It examines why insect biodiversity matters and how the rapid evolution of insect species is affecting us all. Insects and related arthropods make up more than 50 percent of the known animal diversity globally yet a lack of knowledge about insects is hindering the advance of science and society. This book explores the wide variety in type and number of insect species and their evolutionary relationships. Case studies offer assessments on how insect biodiversity can help meet the needs of a rapidly expanding human population and also examine the consequences that an increased loss of insect species will have on the world. The book concludes that a better understanding of the biology and ecology of insects is the only way to sustainably manage ecosystems in an ever changing global environment.

Minami Taiheiyō kaiiki chōsa kenkyū hōkoku, A Survey of the Lepidoptera, Biogeography and Ecology of New Caledonia J.D. Holloway, 2012-12-06

I spent four months in New Caledonia in 1971 with the object of making a quantitative survey of the night flying macrolepidoptera with light traps and an assessment of the Rhopalocera and microlepidoptera. This fieldwork was financed by a Government Grant in Aid for Scientific Investigations administered by the Royal Society and by a grant from the Godman Fund. I devoted a further three weeks to sampling on Norfolk Island with the help of local naturalists Mr and Mrs F JOWETT was able to produce a detailed account of the biogeography and ecology of the moth fauna HOLLOWAY 1977. This book is an account of the results of the New Caledonian work together with reviews of the geology, phytogeography and general zoogeography presented as background for the Lepidoptera fauna and its geography. Previous work on the macroheterocera primarily papers by VIETTE 1948-1971 had recorded not many more than a hundred species a very low total considering the area of the island relative to that of the Fiji group where the moths were being studied by Dr G S ROBINSON when the New Caledonian expedition was at the planning stage. The Fijian fauna then promised considerably to exceed three hundred species. Evidently many more species awaited discovery in New Caledonia.

The Sarawak Museum Journal Sarawak Museum, 1984      The Biodiversity of Microorganisms and Invertebrates D. L. Hawksworth, 1991      High Altitude Tropical Biogeography François Vuilleumier, Maximina Monasterio, 1986

High Altitude Tropical Biogeography provides research workers and academics with a comprehensive overview of the biogeography of high tropical mountains covering the origin, ecology and evolution of plants and animals of this unique ecological zone. The climate in the high altitude mountain regions of the tropics is cold resulting in flora and fauna which more closely resemble their counterparts thousand of miles to the north or south than comparable species in the lowland jungles only a few thousand meters below. These ecological islands besides being very important to the economies of the tropics pose interesting questions of physiological adaptation, biogeography and evolutionary relationships. With contributions from twenty four international specialists who have devoted years to the study of cold mountain tropics this book describes some of the most characteristic plant and animal components of the ecosystem. No other book of this scope and content exists on these tropical biotas.
