The Women's Land Army in First World War Britain B. White, 2014-07-16 Between 1917 and 1919 women enlisted in the Women's Land Army a national organisation with the task of increasing domestic food production Behind the scenes organisers laboured to not only recruit an army of women workers but to also dispel public fears that Britain's Land Girls would be defeminized and devalued by their wartime experiences

Shell Shock, Memory, and the Novel in the Wake of World War I Trevor Dodman, 2015-09-09 Shell Shock Memory and the Novel in the Wake of World War I explores the narrative traces subaltern faces and commemorative spaces of shell shock in wartime and postwar novels by Mulk Raj Anand Ford Madox Ford Mary A Ward George Washington Lee Ernest Hemingway F Scott Fitzgerald and Christopher Isherwood This book argues that World War I novels serve as an untapped source of information about shell shock and renews our present understanding of the condition by exploring the nexus of shell shock and practices of commemoration Shell shock novelists testify to the tenaciousness and complexity of the disorder write survivors into visibility and articulate the immediacy of wounds that remain to be seen This book helps readers understand more fully the extent to which shell shock continues to shape and trouble modern memories of the First World War

Teaching Representations of the First World War Debra Rae Cohen, Douglas Higbee, 2017-07-01 Offers pedagogical techniques for teaching First World War literature in the college classroom including considerations of gender queerness modernism pacifism imperialism code switching children's books graphic novels community based learning the Middle East South Asia and the influenza pandemic Contains information on reference works and online resources Gives syllabus suggestions for undergraduate and graduate courses

Commemorative Modernisms Kelly Alice Kelly, 2020-07-06 Reconsiders the relationship between the Great War and modernism through women's literary representations of death Provides the first sustained study of death and commemoration in women's literature in the wartime and postwar period. Offers a reconsideration of the relationship between the First World War and literary modernism through the lens of women's writing. Considers the literary impact of the vast mortality of the First World War and the culture of war commemoration on British and American women's writing. One of the key questions of modern literature was the problem of what to do with the war dead. Through a series of case studies focusing on nurse narratives Edith Wharton, Katherine Mansfield, H. D. and Virginia Woolf as well as visual and material culture, this book provides the first sustained study of women's literary representations of death and the culture of war commemoration that underlie British and American literary modernism. Considering previously neglected writing by women in the war zones and at home as well as the marginalised writings of well-known modernist authors and drawing on international archival research, this book demonstrates the intertwining of modernist war and memorial culture and broadens the canon of war writing.

The Cambridge Companion to War Writing Kate McLoughlin, 2009-07-16 War writing is an ancient genre that continues to be of vital importance. Times of crisis push literature to its limits, requiring writers to exploit their expressive resources to the maximum in response to extreme events. This Companion focuses on British and American war writing from Beowulf and Shakespeare to bloggers on the War on Terror. Thirteen period-based chapters are complemented by five thematic chapters and two chapters charting influences. This uniquely wide range facilitates both local and comparative study. Each chapter is written by an expert in the field and includes suggestions for further reading. A chronology illustrates how key texts relate to major conflicts. The Companion also explores the latest theoretical thinking on war representation to give access to this developing area and to suggest new directions for research. In addition to students of literature, the volume will interest those working in war studies, history and cultural studies.

The Cambridge Companion to War Writing Catherine Mary McLoughlin, 2009-07-16 This Companion covers British and American war writing from Beowulf to Don DeLillo.

Handbook of British Literature and Culture of the First World War Ralf Schneider, Jane Potter, 2021-09-20 The First World War has given rise to a multifaceted cultural production like no other historical event. This handbook surveys British literature and film about the war from 1914 until today. The continuing interest in World War I highlights the interdependence of war experience, the imaginative re-creation of that experience in writing and individual as well as collective memory. In the first part of the handbook, the major genres of war writing and film are addressed, including of course poetry and the novel, but also the short story. Furthermore, it is shown how our conception of the Great War is broadened when looked at from the perspective of gender studies and post-colonial criticism. The chapters in the second part present close readings of important contributions to the literary and filmic representation of World War I in Great Britain. All in all, the contributions demonstrate how the opposing forces of focusing and canon formation on the one hand and broadening and revision of the canon on the other have characterised British literature and culture of the First World War.

The Cambridge Companion to the Literature of the First World War Vincent Sherry, 2005-01-20 The Great War of 1914-1918 marks a turning point in modern history and culture. This Companion offers critical overviews of the major literary genres and social contexts that define the study of the literatures produced by the First World War. The volume comprises original essays by distinguished scholars of international reputation who examine the impact of the war on various national literatures principally Great Britain, Germany, France, and the United States, before addressing the way the war affected Modernism, the European avant-garde, film, women's writing, memoirs, and of course the war poets. It concludes by addressing the legacy of the war for twentieth-century literature. The Companion offers readers a chronology of key events and publication dates covering the years leading up to and including the war and ends with a current bibliography of further reading organised by chapter topics.

The Cambridge Companion to the Poetry of the First World War Santanu Das, 2013-11-18. This Companion offers a major re-examination of the poetry of the First World War at the start of the war's centennial commemoration.

Fiction and 'The Woman Question' from 1850 to 1930 W. R. Owens, Alexis Weedon, Nicola Darwood, 2020-07-02. This book is about how The Woman Question was represented in works of fiction published between 1850 and 1930. The essays here offer a wide-ranging and original approach to the ways in which literature shaped perceptions of the roles and position of women in society. Debates over The Woman Question encompassed not only the struggle for voting rights but gender equality more widely. The book reaches beyond the usual canonical texts to focus on writers who have in the main attracted relatively little critical attention in recent years: Stella Benson, Kate Chopin, Marie Corelli, Dinah Mulock Craik, Clemence Dane, Arthur Conan Doyle, George Gissing, Ouida, and William Hale White, who wrote under the pseudonym Mark Rutherford. These writers dealt imaginatively with issues such as marriage, motherhood, sexual desire, adultery, and suffrage, and they represented female characters who in varying degrees and with mixed success sought to defy the social, sexual, and political constraints placed upon them. The collection as a whole demonstrates how fiction could contribute in striking and memorable ways to debates over gender equality, debates which continue to have relevance in the twenty-first century.

Fighting France Edith Wharton, 2015-12-31. Edith Wharton, known primarily for her novels of American high society, was also a war writer. She was one of the first woman writers to be allowed to visit the war zones in France in 1915 and report back on what she saw. This resulting collection of six essays, five of which were originally published in American magazines, presents a fascinating and unique perspective on wartime France by one of America's great novelists. Written with Wharton's distinctive literary skills to advocate American intervention in the war, this little-known war text demonstrates that she was a complex and accomplished propagandist. However, these eyewitness accounts also demonstrate a troubling awareness of the human cost of war. Incorporating a wealth of previously unpublished archival material and images, this critical edition aims to bring this neglected text into the field of Wharton studies, allowing critics and enthusiasts to reevaluate her contribution as a war writer and to assess the significance of this period for her literary development.

Domestic Modernism, the Interwar Novel, and E.H. Young Chiara Briganti, Kathy Mezei, 2016-12-05.

Domestic Modernism the Interwar Novel and E H Young provides a valuable analytical model for reading a large body of modernist works by women who have suffered not only from a lack of critical attention but from the assumption that experimental modernist techniques are the only expression of the modern In the process of documenting the publication and reception history of E H Young s novels the authors suggest a paradigm for analyzing the situation of women writers during the interwar years Their discussion of Young in the context of both canonical and noncanonical writers challenges the generic label and literary status of the domestic novel as well as facile assumptions about popular and middlebrow fiction canon formation aesthetic value and modernity The authors also make a significant contribution to discussions of the everyday and to the burgeoning field of homeculture as they show that the fictional embodiment and inscription of home by writers such as Young Virginia Woolf Elizabeth Bowen Ivy Compton Burnett Lettice Cooper E M Delafield Stella Gibbons Storm Jameson and E Arnot Robertson epitomize the long standing symbiosis between architecture and literature or more specifically between the house and the novel

The Return of the Soldier Rebecca West,2010-09-21 The Return of the Soldier tells the story of a shell shocked soldier who returns home from the First World War believing that he is in love with a working class woman from his past rather than married to his aristocratic wife His family and doctor must decide whether to allow him to remain safely in his delusion or to bring him back to reality and return him to the front A brief novel with a seemingly simple plot it is a classic of modernist literature and provides a point of entry into discussions of some of the twentieth century s most enduring themes Appendices include textual variants patriotic and antiwar verse from World War I war journalism by West contemporary paintings and propaganda posters and material on shell shock

Female Embodiment and Subjectivity in the Modernist Novel Renée Dickinson,2012-08-21 This study considers the work of two experimental British women modernists writing in the tumultuous interwar period Virginia Woolf and Olive Moore by examining four crucial incarnations of female embodiment and subjectivity female bodies geographical imagery national ideology and textual experimentation Dickinson proposes that the ways Mrs Dalloway and The Waves by Virginia Woolf and Spleen and Fugue by Olive Moore reflect expose and criticize physical geographical and national bodies in the narrative and form of their texts reveal the authors attempts to try on new forms and experiment with new possibilities of female embodiment and subjectivity

The Cambridge Companion to the Twentieth-Century English Novel Robert L. Caserio,2009-04-30 A survey of the development of the novel since 1900 with detailed information about individual novels themes and subgenres

Grief in Wartime C. Acton,2007-01-31 An examination of private narratives of loss in wartime and publicly legitimized forms of grieving Drawing on sources such as diaries poetry and weblogs and using gender as an analytic category the book looks at men s and women s experiences of war at home and at the front and spans the two World Wars the Vietnam War and the war in Iraq
