Accessible Summary

What is known on the subject?

- To date, the majority of the research regarding innovative psychosocial interventions in psychiatry focuses upon the development and effectiveness of the interventions. Despite the fact that these are important clinical and scientific contributions, only a small percentage of the evidence-based interventions reach clinical practice.
- Cognitive Adaptation Training (CAT) is an effective psychosocial intervention to increase daily functioning and cognitive functioning in people diagnosed with severe mental illness (SMI) in inpatient and outpatient psychiatric care.
- Despite knowledge on the intervention's effectiveness, systematic use of CAT in the daily routine of mental health nurses is insufficient.

What the paper adds to existing knowledge?

- To date, no research is available that describes the factors associated to the implementation of CAT from a nursing perspective.
- This research also adds to the literature on rehabilitation in people diagnosed with SMI in an inpatient setting.
- The results contribute to the science of implementing interventions in long-term psychiatric care and may help future interventions in their implementation process.

What are the implications for practice?

- This study highlights that multiple factors need to be considered when implementing an intervention in routine care and that it is a complicated process.
- Future implementation initiatives require ongoing training and supervision of CAT specialists, appointment of local champions to increase commitment among nursing staff and inclusion and commitment of management to overcome organizational barriers.

This study is registered at the Netherlands Trial Register (identifier: NTR6906). Date registered: 12 February 2012.

Nursing Perspective On Severe Mental Illness:

A Nursing Perspective on Severe Mental Illness Linda Chafetz, 1993 Mental Illness in the Family Beverley Abosh, April Collins, 1996-01-01

Mental Illness in the Family traces the development of treatment approaches with families of the mentally ill over the past three decades. The essays in this book reflect the work of clinicians currently dealing with families in a variety of settings and from a number of perspectives. Topics covered include patients' views on programs for the mentally ill, the needs of families coming to terms with the mental illness of a family member, the forgotten sibling, the concept of grief, the confusion that a family member can experience when dealing simultaneously with the mental health and the criminal justice systems, and the effect of parental mental illness on young children. This volume will be of particular interest to social workers, clinical psychiatrists, psychologists, and other mental health professionals who work primarily with individuals and families who have been affected by major mental illness.

Interprofessional Perspectives Of Mental Health Crisis: For Nurses, Health, and the Helping Professions Kris Deering, Joanne Williams, 2022-03-04

There is plenty in this book to get your teeth into and help us think about how we work with people in mental health crises and how we might best make a difference. Alan Simpson, Professor of Mental Health Nursing, Health Service and Population Research, King's College London, UK. Any one of us could experience a mental health crisis. However, a high quality interdisciplinary response can be lifesaving and life changing. This book is an important contribution to the literature as it has examples of good practice for all professionals, both on the frontline and in service development. Dr Adrian James, President, Royal College of Psychiatrists, UK. This publication is a valuable and timely resource given the increasing recognition of the impact of mental health needs in a range of different professional settings. Victoria Sweetmore, Acting Discipline Lead for Mental Health and Learning Disability Nursing, University of Derby, UK.

Interprofessional Perspectives of Mental Health Crisis improves the care of those experiencing a mental health related crisis by providing insight into the roles different UK statutory services have and the need for collaborative mental health care. For those studying and working in the field of mental health crisis, this vital work will bridge your understanding by offering a cross-discipline perspective of the different services, their role in aiding service users, and the ways we can work more collaboratively together to meet the mental health needs of those requiring care. Throughout the book, it promotes understanding of the various roles each of the key services play within the crucial first 24 hours of a mental health crisis and the challenges they face. Fosters interprofessional collaboration to create a whole system approach to crisis care. Helps professionals to understand good practice and the challenges of other services when aiding a person in crisis. Critically evaluates service provision and ways to improve crisis care. Explores recovery and collaboration with service users experiencing a crisis and their significant others. The book is timely and essential in its promotion of high quality interdisciplinary response and emphasis on integration and collaboration between service providers. Kris Deering is Senior Lecturer in Mental Health Nursing and the module lead of Working with a Person

A Pragmatic Approach to Psychiatric Rehabilitation: Lessons from Chicago's Thresholds Program Jerry Dincin, 1995-12-27. There are three components in psychiatric rehabilitation: medication, the rehabilitation relationship, and rehabilitation program efforts. This volume deals with all three, assessing their importance and explaining how they can be integrated in comprehensive psychiatric rehabilitation. The example used throughout is the program approach at Thresholds, a Chicago based agency for psychiatric rehabilitation. All the contributors have held important staff roles at Thresholds. This volume contains the contributors' current thoughts on psychiatric rehabilitation, illustrated by the story of how and why Thresholds operates as it does and how it arrived where it is today. This is the 68th issue of the quarterly journal New Directions for Mental Health Services. For more information on the series, please see the Journals and Periodicals page.

From Therapeutic Relationships to Transitional Care Cheryl Forchuk, 2021-03-21. This text provides a foundational understanding of therapeutic relationships and the transitional discharge model (TDM), a person centered, evidence based model that supports a smooth transition from hospital to community for people with mental illness. Starting with background into the ground breaking work of Dr. Hildegard Peplau, the mother of modern psychiatric nursing and moving towards a transdisciplinary transitional discharge perspective, chapters introduce students and practitioners to theoretical, historical, and current perspectives on therapeutic relationships as they relate to transitional care. These perspectives foreground empirical research and practical applications that can be implemented in hospital and community settings. The Appendix features an essential TDM toolkit with forms, learning topics, and checklists developed by programs that implement TDM. Essential reading for those studying psychiatric nursing, this book combines theory, research, and best practices into a roadmap for students across nursing and psychiatric disciplines to coordinate these systems without having to implement radical changes to practice.

The Interactive World of Severe Mental Illness Diana J. Semmelhack, Larry Ende, Arthur Freeman, Clive Hazell, Colleen L. Barron, Garry L. Tref, 2015-07-03. In our society, medication is often seen as the treatment for severe mental illness, with psychotherapy a secondary treatment. However, quality social interaction may be as important for the recovery of those with severe mental illness as are treatments. This volume makes this point while describing the emotionally moving lives of eight individuals with severe mental illness as they exist in the U.S. mental health system. Offering social and psychological insight into their experiences, these stories demonstrate how patients can create meaningful lives in the face of great difficulties. Based on in depth interviews with clients with severe mental illness, this volume explores which structures of interaction encourage growth for people with severe mental illness and which trigger psychological damage It considers the clients relationships with friends family peers spouses lovers co workers mental health professionals institutions the community and the society as a whole It focuses specifically on how structures of social interaction can promote or harm psychological growth and how interaction dynamics affect the psychological well being of individuals with severe mental illness
