The Politics of Children's Rights and Representation Bengt Sandin,Jonathan Josefsson,Karl Hanson,Sarada Balagopalan,2023-03-11 This open access edited volume investigates children and youth s deep entanglement in today s major global national and local transformations and processes wherein they are not mere spectators and objects of transformations but instead actively shape them through various social economic and political representations International contributions illuminate the problems that arise when children's rights and participation become a site of contestation and power over who represents whom what when and where. The authors do not provide simple solutions instead offering an understanding of the fundamental nature of these problems as founded in the application of rights and the nature of representation in modern society. Together the authors emphasize that child representation must take into account the local and spatial context of how representations of children are discussed as well as possible discrepancies between local regional national and global processes. American Energy Policy in the 1970s Robert Lifset, 2014-04-03 This historical investigation focuses exclusively on American energy policy in the 1970s. Revisiting the last time energy issues came to the forefront of national political discourse the essays collected here provide new insight into the energy crisis of that decade insights with clear implications for our present dilemmas. Curious Lessons in the Museum Claire Robins, 2016-05-13 Amongst recent contemporary art and museological publications there have been relatively few which direct attention to the distinct contributions that twentieth and twenty first century artists have made to gallery and museum interpretation practices. There are fewer still that recognise the pedagogic potential of interventionist artworks in galleries and museums. This book fills that gap and demonstrates how artists have been making curious but none the less useful contributions to museum education and curation for some time. Claire Robins investigates in depth the phenomenon of artists' interventions in museums and examines their pedagogic implications. She also brings to light and seeks to resolve many of the contradictions surrounding artists' interventions where on the one hand contemporary artists have been accused of alienating audiences and on the other appear to have played a significant role in orchestrating positive developments to the way that learning is defined and configured in museums. She examines the disruptive and parodic strategies that artists have employed and argues for that they can be understood as part of a move to re-establish the museum as a discursive forum. This valuable book will be essential reading for students and scholars of museum studies as well as art and cultural studies.

Motivation and Cognitive Control Todd S. Braver, 2015-12-22 Individuals do not always perform to their full capability on cognitive tasks. When this occurs the usual explanation is that the individual was not properly motivated. But this begs the important question: How and why does motivation interact with and influence cognitive processing and the control processes that regulate it? What are the underlying mechanisms that govern such interactions? Motivation has been an important component of psychology and neuroscience throughout the history of the field but has recently been rejuvenated by rapidly accelerating research interest in the nature of motivation cognition interactions particularly as they impact control processes and goal directed behavior. This volume provides an up to date snapshot of the state of research in this exciting expanding area. The contributors to the volume are internationally renowned researchers that lead the field in conducting groundbreaking studies. Moreover they represent a variety of research perspectives and traditions: cognitive psychology and neuroscience animal learning social affective and personality psychology and development lifespan and aging studies. This book summarizes our current state of understanding of the relationship between motivation and cognitive control and serves as an essential reference for both students and researchers The DISAM Journal of International Security Assistance Management
