Desperately Seeking the Audience Ien Ang, 2006-06-28 Millions of people all over the world are avid members of the television audience Yet despite the central place television occupies in contemporary culture our understanding of its complex and dynamic role in everyday life remains surprisingly limited Focusing on the television audience Ien Ang asks why we understand so little about its nature and argues that our ignorance arises directly out of the biases inherent in prevailing official knowledge about it She sets out to deconstruct the assumptions of this official knowledge by exploring the territory where it is mainly produced the television institutions Ang draws on Foucault's theory of power knowledge to scrutinize television's desperate search for the audience and to identify differences and similarities in the approaches of American commercial television and European public service television to their audiences She looks carefully at recent developments in the field of ratings research in particular the controversial introduction of the people meter as an instrument for measuring the television audience By defining the limits and limitations of these institutional procedures of knowledge production Ien Ang opens up new avenues for understanding television audiences Her ethnographic perspective on the television audience gives new insights into our television culture with the audience seen not as an object to be controlled but as an active social subject engaging with television in a variety of cultural and creative ways

Fear Osho, 2012-10-16 A journey through what makes human beings afraid into a new relationship with our fears

The Warmest Room in the House Steven Gdula, 2008-12-04 The first book that puts the hearth of the American home in its many unique challenges and innovations in its proper place in contemporary history Thomas Jefferson once wrote that if you really want to understand the workings of a society you have to look into their pots and eat their bread Steven Gdula gives us a view of American culture from the most popular room in the house the kitchen Examining the relationship between trends and innovations in the kitchen and the cultural attitudes beyond its four walls Gdula creates a lively portrait of the last hundred years of American domestic life The Warmest Room in the House explores food trends and technology kitchen design appliances and furniture china and flatware cookery bookery food lit and much more Gdula traces the evolution of the kitchen from the back room where the work of the home happened to its place at the center of family life and entertainment today Filled with fun facts about food trends from Hamburger Helper to The Moosewood Cookbook and food personalities from Julia Child to Rachael Ray The Warmest Room in the House is the perfect addition to any well rounded kitchen larder

Netflix and the Re-invention of Television Mareike Jenner, 2018-07-24 This book deals with the various ways Netflix reconceptualises television as part of the process of TV IV As television continues to undergo a myriad of significant changes Netflix has proven itself to be the dominant force in this development simultaneously driving a number of these changes and challenging television's existing institutional structures This comprehensive study explores the pre history of Netflix the role of binge watching in its organisation and marketing and Netflix's position as a transnational broadcaster It also examines different concepts of control and the role these play in the history of ancillary technologies from the remote control to binge watching as Netflix's iteration of giving control to the viewers By focusing on Netflix's relationship with the linear television schedule its negotiations of quality and marketing as well as the way Netflix integrates into national media systems Netflix and the Re invention of Television illuminates the importance of Netflix's role within the processes of TV IV
