Principles of Decorative Design Christopher Dresser, 2013-09 This historic book may have numerous typos and missing text. Purchasers can usually download a free scanned copy of the original book without typos from the publisher. Not indexed. Not illustrated. 1873 edition. Excerpt: Let me give one or two instances but perhaps I had better give treatments for the entire room including the ceiling and not for the wall simply. A good effect of a very plain and inexpensive character would be produced by having a black skirting, a cream colour wall, this colour to be made of the F&C 59 colour called middle chrome and white and to resemble in depth the best pure cream, a cornice coloured with pale blue of greyish tint with deep blue white and a slight line of red and a ceiling of blue of almost any depth. The ceiling colour to be pure French ultramarine or this ultramarine mixed with white and a touch of raw umber. The cornice blues to be made in the same way. The red WALL DECORATIONS 85 P in the cornice to be deep vermilion if very narrow, one sixteenth of an inch or carmine if broad. A room of a slightly more decorative character would be produced by making the lower three feet of the wall of a different colour by forming a dado from the upper part of the wall; thus if the other parts of the room were coloured as in the example just given, the lower three feet might be red vermilion toned to a rich Indian red with ultramarine blue or chocolate purple brown and white with a little orange chrome. This lower portion of the wall being separated from the upper cream coloured portion by a line of black an inch broad or better by a double line, the upper line being an inch broad and the lower line three eighths of an inch, the lines being separated from each other by five eighths of the red or chocolate. I like the formation of a dado for it affords an opportunity of giving apparent stability to the wall by making its lower portion dark and furniture is invariably much improved by being seen.
