Ship Model Testing Douglas Phillips-Birt, 1970 Ships in the Making David Bailey, 1995 For a large part of the 20th century until their closure in 1994 the ship model testing tanks at Teddington and Feltham played a major role in the design and development of merchant ships as we now know them This is a record of the research and test programmes conducted there Remarks on Ship Model Testing, Facilities, and Test Results Hans Edstrand, 1984 Marine Propellers and Propulsion John Carlton, 2011-04-01 Although the propeller lies submerged out of sight it is a complex component in both the hydrodynamic and structural sense This book fulfils the need for a comprehensive and cutting edge volume that brings together a great range of knowledge on propulsion technology a multi disciplinary and international subject The book comprises three main sections covering hydrodynamics materials and mechanical considerations and design operation and performance The discussion relates theory to practical problems of design analysis and operational economy and is supported by extensive design information operational detail and tabulated data Fully updated and revised to cover the latest advances in the field the new edition now also includes four new chapters on azimuthing and podded propulsors propeller rudder interaction high speed propellers and propeller ice interaction The most complete book available on marine propellers fully updated and revised with four new chapters on azimuthing and podded propulsors propeller rudder interaction high speed propellers and propeller ice interaction A valuable reference for marine engineers and naval architects gathering together the subject of propulsion technology in both theory and practice over the last forty years Written by a leading expert on propeller technology essential for students of propulsion and hydrodynamics complete with online worked examples

Mathematical Modeling of Inland Vessel Maneuverability Considering Rudder Hydrodynamics Jialun Liu, 2020-05-11 This book demonstrates that different rudder configurations have different hydrodynamic characteristics which are influenced by the profile the parameters and the specific configuration The author proposes new regression formulas to help naval architects quickly estimate the rudder induced forces and moments in maneuvering Furthermore the author proposes and validates an integrated maneuvering model for both seagoing ships and inland vessels Using the proposed regression formulas and maneuvering model the specific impacts of rudder configurations on inland vessel maneuverability are studied In turn the book demonstrates the application of Reynolds Averaged Navier Stokes RANS simulations to obtain rudder hydrodynamic characteristics and the integration of the RANS results into maneuvering models as an accurate estimation of rudder forces and moments needed to quantify the impacts of rudder configurations on ships maneuvering performance In addition the author proposes new criteria for the prediction and evaluation of inland vessel maneuverability Simulations of ships with various rudder configurations are presented in order to analyze the impacts of rudder configurations on ship maneuverability in different classic and proposed test maneuvers Offering essential guidance on the effects of rudders for inland vessel maneuverability and helping practical engineers make informed design choices the book is of interest to researchers and academics in the field of naval engineering as well as students of naval architecture Industrial practitioners working on ship design may also find it beneficial

Remarks on Ship Model Testing, Facilities, and Test Results. The Eighth David W. Taylor Lectures ,1984 The David W Taylor Lectures were conceived to honor our founder in recognition of his many contributions to naval architecture and naval hydromechanics Previous lecturers in this series have presented material that reminds us of the more theoretical aspects of Admiral Taylor s career But his primary purpose in building the Experimental Towing Tank and its associated facilities was to solve the hydrodynamic problems facing the ship designer He was himself involved in the development of many ship designs for the U S Navy and was a major leader in the translation of towing tank observations into ship design decisions Dr Hans Edstrand recently retired Director General of the Swedish Maritime Research Centre SSPA was invited to give a series of lectures that would reflect this aspect of Admiral Taylor s work Dr Edstrand is himself a pioneer in the development of model testing facilities The variable pressure tunnel which was built at SSPA under his guidance is a powerful and unique facility Lectures include Ship Model Testing Research A History International Towing Tank Conferences A History A European Ship Model Basin The Swedish Maritime Research Centre SSPA Developments in Merchant Ship Design at the Swedish Maritime Research Centre SSPA and Propeller Cavitation and Erosion
