Making Local News:

Making Local News Phyllis Kaniss, 1991-09-24 Why do crimes and accidents earn more news coverage than development and policy issues affecting thousands of people Filled with revealing interviews with both journalists and city officials Making Local News is the first comprehensive look at how the economic motives of media owners professional motives of journalists and the strategies of media wise politicians shape the news we see and hear thereby influencing urban policy Making Local News by Phyllis Kaniss is significant If we can continue to get smarter about that which journalism leaves out or distorts in its coverage of politics we may eventually get smarter about politics itself Mitchell Stephens The Philadelphia Inquirer View A convincing analysis of the factors and forces which color how and why local issues do or do not become newsworthy Michael H Ebner Journal of Interdisciplinary History This work serves as a reminder of the importance of a medium that is often overlooked until economic realities threaten its very existence Choice Kaniss is truly a pioneer in the study of local news Susan Herbst Contemporary Sociology Making Local News Phyllis C. Kaniss, 1997 Local Journalism and Local Media Bob Franklin, 2005-08-18 The local media local newspapers and radio regional television cable television and local news on the internet represents a diverse and rapidly changing sector of the British media landscape Bringing together media academics local journalists and other media professionals this text presents a thorough up to date and authoritative account of recent developments and future prospects for Britain's local newspapers local media and local journalism Drawing on current research and relevant literature the book covers key developments in the local media scene the distinctive editorial format of local newspapers news sources and other sources available to local journalists recent developments in media policy online journalism ethics and regulations the impact of new technology Situating the study within the context of local national and multi national media networks this unique text provides students with a well written and wide ranging assessment of all aspects of the local media in the UK and as such will be a welcome addition to the current literature Making News Richard R. John, Jonathan Silberstein-Loeb, 2015 This book charts the rise and fall of the newspaper as the primary medium for the conveyance of news The book focuses on two of the most influential media markets in the modern world Great Britain and the United States between 1688 and 1995 In 1688 Parliament created institutional arrangements that would hasten the rise of the newspaper as the dominant medium for the circulation of news In 1995 the National Science Foundation commercialized the Internet encouraging an astonishing proliferation of information on all manner of topics including the news Per capita newspaper circulation had been declining for decades partly due to shifting social norms and partly due to the rise of broadcast news The Internet exacerbated this trend partly because it provided a cheaper news source and partly because it quickly became a superior vehicle for advertising a major source of revenue for newspaper publishers for over two hundred years However only rarely has advertising revenue and direct sales covered costs Almost never has the demand for news generated the revenue necessary for its supply Non market institutional arrangements have ranged from direct government subsidies to organizational forms that enabled news organizations to cooperate. From a historical perspective the large profits reaped by a handful of newspaper publishers in the post Second World War era were anomalous and in no sense a baseline for public policy. Never again will the newspaper be the dominant news medium. To guarantee an informed citizenry in the future it is necessary to understand how the news business worked in the past. This book is organized around eight essays each written by a distinguished specialist and each explicitly comparative. Its theme is the indispensability in both Great Britain and the United States of non market institutional arrangements in the provisioning of news.

Making National News Gene Allen, 2014-01-31

For almost a century Canadian newspapers radio and television stations and now internet news sites have depended on the Canadian Press news agency for most of their Canadian and through its international alliances foreign news. This book provides the first ever scholarly history of CP as well as the most wide ranging historical treatment of twentieth century Canadian journalism published to date. Using extensive archival research including complete and unfettered access to CP's archives Gene Allen traces how CP was established and evolved in the face of frequent conflicts among the powerful newspaper publishers John Ross Robertson Joseph Atkinson and Roy Thomson among others who collectively owned it and how the journalists who ran it understood and carried out their work. Other major themes include CP's shifting relationships with the Associated Press and Reuters its responses to new media its aggressive shaping of its own national role during the Second World War and its efforts to meet the demands of French language publishers. Making National News makes a substantial and original contribution to our understanding of journalism as a phenomenon that shaped Canada both culturally and politically in the twentieth century.

News as Culture Ursula Rao, 2010-05-01

At the turn of the millennium Indian journalism has undergone significant changes. The rapid commercialization of the press together with an increase in literacy and political consciousness has led to swift growth in the newspaper market but also changed the way news makers mediate politics. Positioned at a historical junction where India is clearly feeling the effects of market liberalization this study demonstrates how journalists and informants interactively create new forms of political action and consciousness. The book explores English and Hindi newsmaking and investigates the creation of news relations during the production process and how they affect political images and leadership traditions. It moves beyond the news room to outline the role of journalists in urban society the social lives of news texts and the way citizens bring their ideas and desires to bear on the news discourse. This important volume contributes to an emerging debate about the impact of the media on Indian society. Furthermore it convincingly demonstrates the inseparable link between media related practices and dynamic cultural repertoires.

Seeking News, Making China John Alekna, 2024-03-19

Contemporary developments in communications technologies have overturned key aspects of the global political system and transformed the media landscape. Yet interlocking technological informational and political revolutions have occurred many times in the past. In China radio first arrived in the winter of 1922/23 bursting into a world where communication was slow disjointed or non-existent. Less than ten percent of the population ever read newspapers. Just fifty years later at the beginning of the Cultural Revolution news broadcasts reached hundreds of millions of people instantaneously every day. How did Chinese citizens experience the rapid changes in information practices and political organization that occurred in this period? What was it like to live through a news revolution? John Alekna traces the history of news in twentieth-century China to demonstrate how large structural changes in technology and politics were heard and felt. Scrutinizing the flow of news can reveal much about society and politics illustrating who has power and why and uncovering the connections between different regions, peoples and social classes. Taking an innovative holistic view of information practices Alekna weaves together both rural and urban history to tell the story of the rise of mass society through the lens of communication techniques and technology showing how the news revolution fundamentally reordered the political geography of China.

States, political parties and corporations as well as new social movements and diverse cultural interests today seek to put their message across via the media and in pursuit of disparate aims enhanced public understanding and legitimacy. Introducing theoretical ideas and the latest empirical findings in this fast-developing field of media communication study this book addresses such issues as the rapid growth of public relations in its impact on news production, state information management strategies in times of internal political dissent, political parties and mediated spin conducted at national and local levels, the historically changing nature of war journalism, environmental activism and pressure group communication and much more. back cover

Making Social Work News Meryl

Aldridge, 2002-09-11 Social work has recently received some dreadful news coverage but the most extravagant headlines and accusations centre on local authority social work with children. Moreover such accusations stem almost exclusively from the national press. In Making Social Work News Meryl Aldridge widens the debate of social work and its representation by the news media. The book falls into three parts: the first providing students and practitioners with a basic understanding of the day-to-day working and commercial logic of the UK press; the second part examines the press coverage of social work itself exploring its considerable variation comparing different news treatments between broadsheet and tabloids and between national and local papers; the final part considers whether social work has particular difficulties in defining its goals and lobbying on its own behalf. It concludes with some reflection on the importance of doing so now that marketing has become part of the policy process. Making Social Work News will be invaluable to all students and lecturers in social work, sociology and social policy as well as media and cultural studies. It will also be essential reading for all social work professionals particularly those involved in training.

American Television News: The Media Marketplace and the Public Interest Steve M. Barkin, 2016-09-16 This concise history of the news broadcasting industry will appeal to both students and general readers Stretching from the radio days of the 1920s and 1930s and the early era of television after World War II through to the present the book shows how commercial interests regulatory matters and financial considerations have long shaped the broadcasting business The network dominance of the 1950s ushered in the new prominence of the anchorman a distinctly American development and gave birth to the golden age of TV broadcasting which featured hard hitting news and documentaries epitomized by the reports by CBS's Edward R. Murrow Financial pressures and advertising concerns in the 1960s led the networks to veer away from their commitment to serve the public interest and tabloid television celebrity gossip driven soft news and news magazines became increasingly widespread In the 1980s cable news further transformed broadcasting igniting intense competition for viewers in the media marketplace Focusing on both national and local news this stimulating volume examines the evolution of broadcast journalism It also considers how new electronic technologies will affect news delivery in the 21st century and whether television news can still both serve the public interest and maintain an audience Making It in Broadcasting Leonard Mogel, 2010-08
