National And International Law Enforcement In The Ocean:

National and International Law Enforcement in the Ocean William T. Burke, 1975 Canadian Foreign Policy and the Law of Sea Barbara Johnson, Mark W. Zacher, 2011-11-01 Since the 1960s there have been intensive international negotiations to revise the law of the sea. These discussions culminated in the convening of the Third United Nations Conference on the Law of the Sea in December 1973 and in four additional sessions up to September 1976. Whether the almost 150 participating states will be able to reach an accord in 1977 or later on the myriad issues on their agenda is still uncertain. Two major issues have been the extension of coastal state jurisdiction over resources and activities and the establishment of an international regime to govern the exploitation of the deep seabed. Canada's most significant role has been that of a leader of the coastal state grouping which has sought to expand states' jurisdiction over fisheries, seabed resources, scientific research and pollution control within a 200 mile economic zone and sometimes beyond. A number of these Canadian policy goals have already been accepted by a large majority of the participants in the conference. In this role Canada has found itself opposed to many of its traditional allies among the developed nations with large fleets engaged in commerce in distant waters and concerned about the traditional freedom of the high seas and has aligned itself with the coastal developing nations of Africa, Asia and Latin America. The seven essays in this volume examine the development of Canadian policies on the major law of the sea issues and the outcome of the negotiations on them. In so doing the studies have analysed Canada's dramatic seaward expansion and involvement in one of the most important United Nations Conferences. Federal Ocean Program United States. Encyclopedia of Ocean Law and Policy in Asia-Pacific Seokwoo Lee, 2022-11-21 This timely encyclopedia addresses the underrepresented scholarly state practice of the Asia Pacific region in negotiating and implementing the United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea (UNCLOS), a continuing cornerstone of focus for regional and non-regional states alike. Further highlights for each represented state include ocean treaty accessions, domestic implementation, maritime zones, maritime disputes, exploring and exploiting living and non-living resources, marine environment protection, marine scientific research, dispute settlement and contributions to the development of the law of the sea. The law of the sea is brought to life in the domestic laws, policies and institutions of states discussed. Human Rights and Law Enforcement at Sea Anna Petrig, 2014-10-30 Law enforcement at sea has become an increasingly important tool for combating transnational crime. Such law enforcement operations are commonly directed by multinational missions composed of military rather than police forces and are often carried out in maritime areas not subject to national jurisdiction. Because of these characteristics, maritime law enforcement operations touch upon many unresolved human rights issues. In the present study, counter-piracy operations off the coast of Somalia and in the Indian Ocean serve as the quintessential example of how law enforcement measures taken at sea may fall short of international human rights standards An unprecedented number of national and multinational missions have been deployed to counter the phenomenon of piracy off the coast of Somalia and in the region Their mandate includes the arrest detention and transfer for prosecution of piracy suspects The book at hand examines the procedures pertinent to the decision whether to release piracy suspects prosecute them in the seizing State or transfer them to a third State and the detention regime pending such decisions The study provides a critical analysis of the compatibility of these procedures with international law first and foremost human rights law Using piracy as an example it demonstrates that the characteristics of national and multinational law enforcement at sea may lead to a deviation from certain human rights standards standards that the States in question readily accept and apply in their land based territorial law enforcement operations At the centre of the analysis are two unique case studies which provide insight into the arrest detention and transfer procedures in both a multinational context and a purely interstate setting This work is a valuable contribution to legal scholarship dealing with the human rights dimension of maritime law enforcement operations It is a useful timely and innovative resource for both academics and legal practitioners alike or any person interested in the applicability and scope of human rights norms in the maritime context Integrated Maritime Security Dr. Prabhakaran Paleri, 2014-05-01 This book is unique in the way that it looks at the much talked about maritime security through the perspective of national security without disconnect in the terrain specific mode of the ocean The uniqueness is not in the treatment of the concept of maritime security but that of national security in a manner that is different from the beaten notion of physical security of a nation and its people from external and internal threats National security according to the author is more than just military security or the conditions of what is often termed as internal security It is complex according to his studied findings The book provides a warning to governments that any approach to national governance without integrated maritime security can be defeating in the overall objective of maximising national security even for landlocked countries in the modern world The book provides a comprehensive review and analysis of integrated maritime security providing ample scope for further research on many of the concepts and terminologies inculcated as findings of research The interesting aspect is that the author views maritime security as a ghost protocol to hammer his ideas into the earnest listener Merchant Marine Oversight United States. Congress. House. Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries. Subcommittee on Merchant Marine, 1976 The Farmer and the Dolphin William S. Walker, 2018-06-28 At Garden City Beach S C where no one seemed to hurry the first indication of trouble was the staccato rumble of footsteps on the stairs A sharp knock at the door came next And when 86 year old Betty Mincey opened up she faced law officers wearing guns Three men two from the South Carolina Department of Natural Resources and a federal agent from the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration had come to investigate the report of a dead dolphin taken in a net set by her husband in front of the Mincey house that morning Nov 3 2013 After questioning 86 year old World War II Navy veteran C P Mincey the officers told him he had violated the Marine Mammal

Protection Act which cites the illegal taking of a dolphin as a federal offense The accompanying S C DNR officer told him he had also broken state laws in setting and observing the net Mincey s explanation that he had made no attempt to take the dolphin found dead earlier that morning in his lightweight mesh net did not appear to matter to the officers They charged the South Carolina farmer with killing a dolphin and his fine was eventually set at 6500 The events at Garden City marked the opening stage of a 15 month long battle between the Mincey family and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration Join South Carolina author William Walker for an in depth entertaining behind the scenes account of how Mincey with the support of Latta S C attorneys LaFon LeGette and Alan Berry won his case in a contentious federal hearing at Georgetown S C
