Making Of Literate Societies:

The Making of Literate Societies David R. Olson, Nancy Torrance, 2001-08-22 This volume provides a systematic analysis of the role of literacy in social development and advances a set of directions that governments and other agencies should take in designing their literacy programmes Writing Elena L. Grigorenko, 2012 This book captures the diversity and richness of writing as it relates to different forms of abilities skills competencies and expertise Psychologists educators researchers and practitioners in neighboring areas are interested in exploring how writing develops and in what manner this development can be fostered but they lack a handy unified and comprehensive source of information to satisfy their interest The goal of this book is to fill this void by reflecting on the phenomenon of writing from a developmental perspective It contains an integrated set of chapters devoted to issues of writing how writing develops how it is and should be taught and how writing paths of development differ across writing genres Specifically the book addresses typologies of writing pathways of the development of writing skills stages of the development of writing individual differences in the acquisition of writing skills writing ability and disability teaching writing and the development and demonstration of expertise in writing

Literacy, Narrative and Culture Jens Brockmeier, David R Olson, Min Wang, 2013-12-16 An important contribution to the multi disciplinary study of literacy narrative and culture this work argues that literacy is perhaps best described as an ensemble of socially and historically embedded activities of cultural practices It suggests viewing written language producing and distributing deciphering and interpreting signs are closely related to other cultural practices such as narrative and painting The papers of the first and second parts illustrate this view in contexts that range from the pre historical beginnings of tracking signs in hunter gatherer cultures and the emergence of modern literate traditions in Europe in the 17th to 19th century to the future of electronically mediated writing in times of the post Gutenberg galaxy The chapters of the third present results of recent research in developmental and educational psychology Contributions by leading experts in the field make the point that there is no theory and history of writing that does not presuppose a theory of culture and social development At the same time it demonstrates that every theory and history of culture must unavoidably entail a theory and history of writing and written culture This book brings together perspectives on literacy from psychology linguistics history and sociology of literature philosophy anthropology and history of art It addresses these issues in plain language not coded in specialized jargon and addresses a multi disciplinary forum of scholars and students of literacy narrative and culture

Ancient Literacies William A Johnson, Holt N Parker, 2009-02-05 Classicists have been slow to take advantage of the important advances in the way that literacy is viewed in other disciplines including in particular cognitive psychology socio linguistics and socio anthropology On the other hand historians of literacy continue to rely on outdated work by classicists mostly from the 1960 s and 1970 s and have little access to the current reexamination of the ancient evidence This timely volume attempts to formulate new interesting ways of talking about the entire concept of literacy in the ancient world literacy not in the sense of whether 10% or 30% of people in the ancient world could read or write but in the sense of text oriented events embedded in a particular socio cultural context The volume is intended as a forum in which selected leading scholars rethink from the ground up how students of classical antiquity might best approach the question of literacy in the past and how that investigation might materially intersect with changes in the way that literacy is now viewed in other disciplines The result will give readers new ways of thinking about specific elements of literacy in antiquity such as the nature of personal libraries or what it means to be a bookseller in antiquity new constructionist questions such as what constitutes reading communities and how they fashion themselves new takes on the public sphere such as how literacy intersects with commercialism or with the use of public spaces or with the construction of civic identity new essentialist questions such as what book and reading signify in antiquity why literate cultures develop or why literate cultures matter The book derives from a conference a Semple Symposium held in Cincinnati in April 2006 and includes new work from the most outstanding scholars of literacy in antiquity e g Simon Goldhill Joseph Farrell Peter White and Rosalind Thomas

Psychological Theory and Educational Reform David R. Olson, 2003-06-16 For well over a century educational reformers have looked for a breakthrough in the sciences of psychology and pedagogy that would dramatically improve the effectiveness of schooling This book shows why such an ambition is an illusion Schools are institutions which attempt to balance the needs of a bureaucratic society that funds them with the personal goals interests hopes and ambitions of the students who enroll in them Reform efforts attempt to realign that balance without any clear conception of how the two are related This book offers a theoretical account of the relation between the minds of learners and the institutional structure of the school that would account both for the ways that schooling remakes minds and societies and why such institutions are resistant to change

Memory and Nation Building Michael L. Galaty, 2018-08-16 Memory and Nation Building addresses the complex topic of collective memory first described by sociologist Maurice Halbwachs in the first half of the 20th century Author Michael Galaty argues that the first states appropriated traditional collective memory systems in order to form With this in mind he compares three Mediterranean societies Egypt Greece and Albania each of which experienced very different trajectories of state formation Galaty attributes these differences to varying responses to collective memory in all three places through time with climaxes in the Ottoman period during which all three were under Ottoman control Egypt was characterized by deeply meaningful memory tropes concerning national unity which spanned all of Egyptian history while Greece experienced memory fragmentation a condition exacerbated by periods of imperial conquest Albania adapted and assimilated when faced with foreign domination such that an indigenous Albanian state did not form until 1912 Galaty builds a diachronic model of state formation and its relationship to memory and political control Memory and Nation Building culminates in an analysis of modern collective memory systems and resistance to those systems which are often framed as conflicts over heritage The formation and eventual fall of the short lived Islamic State serves as an example of extreme memory work with lessons for other modern nations
